NRA Officials Open New Reemployment Drive Today

EVERY CITY WILL HAVE NEW BOARD

Object of Campaign is to Get 100 Percent Compliance With Blue Eagle
CHECK UP VIOLATORS
Boards Will Begin Immediately An Investigation of Local Complaints

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(UP)—A drive to obtain 100 percent compliance with the blue eagle reemployment agreement was started today by the national recovery administration.

Administrator Hugh S. Johnson announced that "compliance boards" are to be created in every city and town in the country to investigate complaints of non-compliance and to handle other details of the reemployment campaign.

The drive for full compliance with blue eagle pledges marked a second phase in the reemployment effort and will serve as a check up both on violators of the agreement and those who are hesitating to inaugurate shorter working hours and increased rate of pay.

The compliance drive was announced as the NRA tackled the troublesome coal situation through new hearings on the administration-written code, and opened hearings on proposed codes for the motion picture and boot and shoe industries.

The seven-member "compliance boards" will be charged with duties of education, conciliation and mediation in their respective communities and will be composed of representatives of employers, employees, and consumers.

The boards will begin immediately the investigation of complaints now before local committees. Creation of the new boards was a definite move by the administration to eliminate "chiseling" and make blue eagle employers conform to the full measure of their agreement.

Six members of the committee would consist of two representatives of employees, two employers, a consumers' representative, preferably a woman, and a lawyer, recommended by the state bar association.

PENNSYLVANIA BANK HELD UP AND ROBBED

FARRELL, Pa., Sept. 12.—(UP)—A mob of gunmen held up the S. J. Gully bank as it was making up payrolls for local mills today, kidnaped an employee, and fled toward Sharon, a few miles from here.

Ten men were in the mob who walked into the bank when few patrons were present. One of them, apparently the leader, was masked. All carried saved-off shotguns or pistols.

Seizing all cash in sight, they took Harold Wild, 21, an employee, and ran with him to two automobiles near the building, leaped in them and sped away. Wild later was released.

Officials do not estimate immediately how much money was taken. This was pay day for several mills, however, and it was feared the loss would be heavy.

No shots were fired and no one in the bank was harmed.

BURMAH WHITE ADMITS AIDING SLAIN BANDIT

Santa Ana Girl-bride of Ruthless L. A. Gunman in Confession

BURMAH WHITE, her icy composure and long continued defiance of authorities, a confession of participation in numerous holdups with her slain bandit husband, Thomas White, was made today by former Santa Ana girl, known as the "blonde bandit" for her career of crime in Los Angeles.

Announcement of the confession was made by District Attorney Byron Pitts, who said the girl had decided to "make a clean breast" of her activities with White who was slain last week in a gun fight with detectives who were on the trail of the couple. Pitts said she had decided to tell all the details of her part in the eight holdups in which she was involved with her husband, who was termed by Los Angeles police as the "Rattlesnake" because of his ruthlessness.

Pitts further announced that the girl, who was well known in Santa Ana and other Orange county communities, had begun making a written statement in the presence of himself and her attorney.

White and his bride had been identified by many of the persons who had been robbed in their nocturnal activities. White had shot at several of his victims, who included Crombie Allen, retired Ontario newspaper publisher and his companion, Miss Cora Withington, both of whom were wounded.

The confession came after an hour of questioning by the district attorney after the grand jury had listened to testimony of nearly a dozen holdup victims who had identified White as a bandit.

The blonde 19-year-old former Santa Ana high school girl said she lived in constant fear of the gunman from the moment she learned he was an ex-convict. She indicated this would be her defense to any charges which she might be preferred against her.

Mrs. White said her husband shot Allen and Miss Withington "to scare them." "He didn't mean to hit either one," she said.

BOARD WILL HEAR PROTESTS ON TAX

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 12.—(UP)—Protests against the so-called one-price plan of collecting the new state sales tax were to be aired before the state board of equalization at a hearing here late today.

The one-price plan, which would lump the cost of articles with the tax on a single price tag, was recently suggested by the board as a method of facilitating and avoiding detailed explanation of the levy.

DEFENSE RESTS CASE TODAY IN LAMSON'S MURDER TRIAL

COUNTY PLANS REGISTRATION OF CRIMINALS

Sheriff Will Appear Before Board With Ordinance Seeking Action

WITH LOS ANGELES county supervisors adopting an ordinance yesterday demanding registration of all persons convicted of felonies within the past 10 years, it has been indicated that Orange county supervisors will be requested to take similar action.

Sheriff Logan Jackson said this morning that Herman Zabel, chief of the Bureau of Identification has asked the Los Angeles sheriff for a copy of the ordinance. As soon as the copy is received, Jackson indicated he will go before the supervisors and ask them to take similar action.

Jackson said today, "Through the action of Los Angeles county in forcing registration of all known criminals Orange county without a similar ordinance will become the dumping ground for lawbreakers leaving Los Angeles county."

"The criminal element now in Los Angeles county will not remain there and face the campaign of harassment that law enforcement officers are launching. They will move to adjoining counties and carry on their depredations. As a matter of self preservation the county must adopt a similar ordinance."

Mayor Paul Witmer of Santa Ana said today that the city would join with the county in any action taken to carry on the warfare against criminals. Witmer said: "Co-operation of every incorporated community with the county officials will be absolutely necessary to prevent Orange county from becoming the dumping ground for every type of criminal and gangster."

"Los Angeles has taken vigorous action to curb the crime wave but unless we of the adjoining counties take similar action the campaign will be useless. Santa Ana will co-operate in any program of crime suppression."

Jackson indicated today that the matter of an ordinance similar to the one adopted yesterday by the Los Angeles board of supervisors will not be taken before the board of supervisors until next Tuesday. He said that he wanted time to thoroughly study the Los Angeles ordinance before making his recommendations.

The ordinance passed in Los Angeles yesterday was listed as an emergency ordinance and became effective immediately. It was passed at 5 o'clock last night and sets tonight at 10 o'clock as the deadline for registration of felons of record of the last 10 years. The ordinance applies to all such persons living in the unincorporated territory of Los Angeles county. The board of supervisors sent copies of the law to all municipalities and it is expected that they will take similar action.

Failure of known felons to register is punishable by a fine of $500 and six months imprisonment. Each 48 hours of failure to register constitutes a separate violation.

POLICE CHECKING ON "DOCTOR" STORY

OAKLAND, Calif., Sept. 12.—(UP)—Bay region police today investigated a theory that Dr. Willard Thompson, who said he was from the Mayo brothers' clinic of Rochester, might be Lester Parker, notorious imposter, before continuing their search for the missing man.

"Dr. Thompson" disappeared early Friday. He did not return a piece of valuable medical apparatus he had obtained from St. Joseph's hospital, police said.

Dr. Charles B. Pinkham, secretary of the state medical board, pointed out to police that Dr. Thompson's description tallied with that of Parker and that the Oklahoma licensed automobile Mrs. Thompson drove resembled one assertedly used by Parker.

PERMIT SOUGHT FROM CITY FOR TANGO PARLOR

Council Adopts 'Hands Off' Policy Until County's Attitude Learned

TANGO GAMES, object of heated discussion and dispute in Orange county and Southern California, and which have been banned as gambling in Los Angeles county, bobbed up at the city council meeting yesterday with the application of James Bennett of Los Angeles to operate a tango parlor in Santa Ana.

The council took no action on the proposal and referred it for investigation to Police Commissioner E. G. Warner, who is to confer with City Attorney Clyde Downing if necessary. There is no licensing law under which a permit could be granted and special permission would have to be granted. It was said, Bennett had previously sought a permit from City Clerk Ed Vogel but was told to appear before the council.

The council preferred to take a "hands off" policy until a decision is reached regarding the situation in the county, members said. Operators of a new parlor set up on the state highway near the county hospital were restrained from opening by the sheriff's office and have retaliated by filing a writ in the superior court seeking to remove the bans.

Elsewhere in Southern California there has been considerable crusading and discussion about the "games of chance" and many communities have refused to permit the operation of the games on the grounds they constitute gambling. Bennett displayed licenses he said he had secured from Los Angeles and said he hoped to open the game next week in Pomona, although he had not secured a license as yet.

In his letter of application, Bennett included a detailed explanation of how to play the game. He said he had not selected a location in this city and preferred to wait and determine the sentiment of the councilmen.

ACTRESS SUES FOR DIVORCE

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Sept. 12.—(UP)—Allene Pringle, American movie actress, started divorce proceedings in supreme court today against Charles M. Pringle, well-to-do Scotch planter in Jamaica.

The divorce was understood to be for technical legal reasons in connection with Pringle's remarriage. Mrs. Pringle obtained a divorce in Mexico last year after a long separation from her husband.

RAY ADKINSON IS HONORED AS NRA CHAIRMAN

School Superintendent to Head Body to Handle All Complaints

A DEFINITE PLAN for complaint procedure under the NRA was revealed here today with the appointment of Ray Adkinson, county superintendent of schools, as chairman of the Orange County Adjustment Board of the NRA, which will handle complaints on employers, employees or others. Adkinson was appointed by the California State Recovery Board of the National Recovery Administration. Jack L. Warner of Hollywood is chairman of the state board.

Organization of the county under the enforcement plan and appointment of committees and boards to assist will be accomplished when Adkinson returns from Los Angeles, where he went today to confer with state board officials.

The main county adjustment board will include one person to represent consumers, one to represent employers and one to represent employees. One of the members will be a lawyer or a person with law training.

One or more sub-divisional NRA offices will be established throughout the county, with boards similar to the main county board scheduled to be appointed by Adkinson to act as sub-adjustment boards. The duty of these sub-adjustment boards is to eliminate violations of NRA arising in their respective areas.

Enforcement Body

The appointment of these committees and boards, Adkinson told The Register this morning, will be non-partisan. He pointed out that former NRA work here and in the county was to get everyone signed up in the NRA program, while the present movement is designed to enforce the president's reemployment agreement which has been

KANSAS CITY TAXI DRIVERS ON STRIKE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 12.—(UP)—Yellow Cab taxi drivers struck here today, demanding a minimum wage of $14.50 a week under the NRA program.

Independent cabs crowded into the union station plaza as passengers from the morning trains gazed in bewilderment at a block-long line of abandoned yellow cabs.

"We are averaging less than $20 a month," asserted Charles C. Moore, a driver who said he represented the strikers.

"We are asking for a minimum wage under the blanket code. It looks like we should get somewhere around $14.50 a week."

Moore said 17 of the Yellow Cab drivers were on strike. Those who remained on duty were not molested.

Noted Crime Expert Ends Testimony

Rebuttal Evidence Will Be Submitted Immediately By State Witnesses

SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 12.—(UP)—The defense rested today in the murder trial of David A. Lamson, Stanford campus leader accused of beating to death his attractive young wife.

Direct testimony ended with presentation by the defense of its star witness, Prof. E. O. Heinrich, famed Berkeley criminologist. Rebuttal testimony expected to provide many sensations will follow.

Edwin M. Rea, chief defense counsel, announced his direct case was completed at 11:43 a. m. after five and one-half days of testimony.

Almost half of that time was taken up by Heinrich, the famed Berkeley scientific sleuth on whom the defense depended to present its "ident theory in Alene Thorpe Lamson's death last Memorial day.

Dr. Heinrich lectured to the jury for hours on the properties of blood and the science of criminal investigation. But each time he attempted to prove his theories the state interposed successful objections.

The purpose of the visit to the vine-covered bungalow not far from the mansion of former president Hoover was that the defense might actually demonstrate how a 113-pound woman could strike the back of her head against a wash basin and fall fact down, her body half in, half out of the tub.

Every effort of Dr. Heinrich to describe a demonstration he said he had made for his own satisfaction, failed. It was a foregone conclusion that Judge R. R. Syer would not, then, permit an actual demonstration.

"The only way to prove it would be to kill someone," objected Assistant Prosecutor John P. Fitzgerald.

Heinrich tried the experiment twice," shouted Defense Counsel E. M. Rea angrily. "We can prove how Mrs. Lamson died."

"All we want to show was that a girl was placed in such a position that her head was on the wash basin, her legs were in the tub, and that after the impact she slipped back into the tub, because a woman's center of gravity is below the hips."

WOODIN RETURNS TO DESK ON THURSDAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(UP)—Secretary of Treasury Woodin will return to his desk here Thursday after several months' illness, it was learned today at the treasury department.

Dean G. Acheson, undersecretary of treasury, on whose shoulders direction of the treasury has rested during Woodin's absence, will take a two-week's vacation trip to Canada. He left this morning.

Woodin, according to treasury officials, has fully recovered from the throat ailment which kept him from the treasury.

MAINE FAVORS REPEAL OF DRY LAW BY 2 TO 1

Three Other States Today Go to Polls as Wets Claim Victory

BULLETIN

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 12.—(UP)—The first three precincts in Baltimore to report in today's repeal election gave: For repeal 513. Against 10.

COLORADO, Maryland and Minnesota voted today on repeal of the 18th amendment. Twenty-six states already have voted wet. Repeal leaders expected by tonight to be only seven states short of the 36 necessary to abolish national prohibition.

Maine, next to Kansas, the driest of the states, repudiated national prohibition today by a majority of better than two to one. All 16 counties apparently were wet. Returns from 557 of the 632 precincts showed:

For repeal 114,373. Against repeal, 52,348.

The vote represented a reversal of dry sentiment entrenched for almost a century. Maine was the first state to have prohibition within its own borders.

The wet trend was even visible in returns from the rural districts where dry leaders had been certain of victory. Some rural boxes were overwhelming for repeal. On by a handful were dry and these by slender margins. Cities were strongly wet.

Repeal leaders were jubilant, declaring victory had been won against uneven odds imposed by the mechanics of the election which elected 90 delegates to the state convention that will pass on the 21st (repeal) amendment, Dec. 6. Nothing on the ballot indicated which delegates were wet and which dry.

A decision by the state supreme court held that no delegates could be pledged in advance. Therefore the convention will be deliberative. It was believed that all delegates would follow pre-election promises.

The delegates were elected by counties.

The only doubtful state among the three voting today was Minnesota.

MOVES FAST TO OFFSET OPPOSITION

Efforts to Placate Party Leaders Fail and New Revolt is Expected Soon

PRESIDENT HOPEFUL

Early American Recognition Sought by New Government, Reports State

HAVANA, Sept. 12.—(UP)—President Ramon Grau San Martin, struggling against fast crystallizing opposition, named his cabinet today. He hoped by this means to keep the revolutionary movement in power.

The cabinet, formed after two days in which the new president strove anxiously but vainly to placate party leaders, contains men of eminence and popularity. But none of the powerful older parties is represented.

Predictions were free as the president summoned his ministers to take the oath of office this morning that his regime could not last.

Army officers, in their fortified hotel, were charging that the new government was "dragging the mass of the citizenry to desperation" and were talking of "traitors."

The powerful ABC revolutionary society which had much to do with Gerardo Machado's fall was definitely hostile. The OCCR secret society, equally potent, was skeptically hostile. Mario Menocal, former president and leader of the Menocalists, definitely was against the government. In addition there were two strikes—of laundry and ice plant workers. They were declared to be of only local significance.

Grau San Martin remained optimistic. He hoped for early American recognition.

"The problem presented by the attitude of the army officers will be settled in satisfactory manner soon," he said to the United Press today. "With the cabinet functioning, and with order being maintained throughout the country, I am confident that I shall soon obtain recognition."

He added that he was optimistic regarding pending labor questions, any of which might precipitate such a general strike as led to Machado's fall. The politicians and soldiers have had their share

KENT INDICTED ON MANN ACT CHARGES

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 12.—(UP)—Earl E. Kent, alias Eddie Doyle, sought throughout the nation following the asserted abduction of Helen Lyons, 14-year-old Sacramento girl near Merced three months ago, was under indictment today by the federal grand jury here on charges of violating the Mann act.

Several weeks after the Lyons girl had been found at Watsonville, Kent was taken into custody in Florida. Abduction charges against him, however, were dropped when it was found possible to secure an indictment under the Mann act. The indictment involves transportation of a young woman from Texas to California.

GEORGE SUNDAY DIES IN NIGHT FROM INJURIES

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—(UP)—The stormy life of George M. Sunday, 40-year-old son of the evangelist "Billy" and "Ma" Sunday, ended last night when he died under an anesthetic as surgeons tried to set a jaw broken in a 75-foot plunge from his apartment window.

His parents and wife, who differed between accident and suicide in describing the fatal fall, were not present when Sunday died. Earlier in the day they were told that he would recover.

A note of mysticism was added to the unexpected death when the wife of the famed evangelist said she had a premonition that her son was dying.

"At the hour my boy died I felt this danger," she said. "I sat down at the piano. It was the first time I had felt inclined to play since I came here more than a week ago to help George recover from a nervous breakdown."

"I played 'Nearer My God to Thee.' As I finished, the telephone rang. They told me of George's death."

The famed evangelist came from Hood River last week end to be with his son.

An inquest to learn whether the death was suicide or accident will be held today. The body will then be taken to Los Angeles for burial.

Dr. George A. Howell had charge of the operation last night. Other fractures had been cared for. An anesthetic was given and the jaw set. Dr. Howell said he did not regain consciousness before dying.

Dr. Howell and Dr. Nathan Houseman, who was called when Sunday's broken body was found below his fourth floor apartment window last Thursday, will testify at the inquest today.

The coroner expected to call Mrs.

Sunday, the former Mauryne Reichard of Los Angeles, who was a cloak model and dancer under the name "Renee LaSalle."

It was she who told police Sunday threatened suicide after a quarrel in which he broke her ring finger and ordered his mother to leave the house.

She said he had suffered a nervous breakdown brought on by financial reverses. She sent to Hood River, Ore., for his mother. Sunday turned on his wife, struck her in the eye, broke her finger and ordered his mother to leave, according to the wife's story. She said he then suddenly calmed and when his mother insisted on departing, he cried:

"This will be the end of me."

Later, said Mrs. Sunday, he called a taxi and told her he intended to "jump in the bay."

As she telephoned for a doctor to care for her finger, she heard a crash in the front room. Sunday had gone through the window.

At a hospital, Sunday regained consciousness and whispered he had fallen while "watering a fern."

When Sunday's first wife obtained a divorce two years ago she named Miss Reichard. Sunday then married the former model. This summer, she sued for divorce, charging cruelty. They were reconciled three days later and the suit was withdrawn.

nesota where drys have staged an extensive campaign. Andrew Voilestad, auditor of the Voilestad act, was among their speakers. Vets, however, insisted that Minnesota was with them and impartial observers were inclined to agree.

Maryland and Colorado were both regarded as irrevocably wet. Maryland was a pioneer in the revolt against the 18th amendment and has been considered warring wet for years. Colorado, until recently, was firm to the dry cause. If the apparently irresistible trend toward repeal, which bowled over the traditionally dry sentiment of Maine, continues unbroken repeal will become an accomplished fact December 6.

New Mexico and Idaho vote next Tuesday. Virginia votes Oct. 3. Florida Oct. 10, and Ohio, Pennsylvania, North and South Carolina, Kentucky and Utah Nov. 7. The repeals may lose two and still have the necessary 34.

Actual repeal must await the 26th state convention that ratifies the 21st (repeal) amendment. Ohio, on Dec. 4, will be the 33rd state to hold a convention. The following day, Pennsylvania holds its convention, and Dec. 6 North and South Carolina and Maine hold theirs.

NEW PRESIDENT OF CUBA NAMES CABINET TODAY

Judge Syer was adamant on the point. Neither did he permit Dr. Heinrich to give his calculation of the force which would be exerted when a 115-pound body fell probable results and probable direction of the fall.

Questions Lamson. When Lamson testified he found his wife's body partly in and partly out of the tub, face downward against the floor but with no bruises or marks on the face or forehead. Prosecutor Allan P. Lindsay questioned him sharply.

The state holds Lamson held his wife by the hair and struck the back of her head repeatedly with an iron pipe. It declared that if she struck the back of her head against the washstand in an accidental fall she would have slipped to the floor back down and fallen out of the tub, or if she fell face downward her face would have been bruised.

Virtually the only important bit of defense strategy Dr. Heinrich permitted to substantiate was his denial of Dr. Frederick Froese's claim that he found blood on the alleged murder weapon. Dr. Heinrich said his tests revealed no blood, and that he worked side by side with the state criminologist.

Testimony Falls. The testimony of Dr. Heinrich, which the defense expected to be most important in saving the Stanford campus intellectual from the rope, fell flat chiefly because he was not called into the case early enough.

Dr. Heinrich did not enter the Lamson cottage until June 11, more than two weeks after Mrs. Lamson was killed. He took no photographs until June 26. But the state proved that on the evening of May 30 Frank A. Haggood, Palo Alto undertaker, washed many of the bloodstains from the bathroom walls and ceiling.

The witness, a noted criminologist who has solved many western crimes with extremely slender clues, brought into court a can of red varnish and a valise full of test tubes and equipment he was not permitted to use.

He was allowed to say that the "trail of blood" the state said led from the bathroom to the backyard bonfire Lamson tended that morning, and from which the iron pipe was raked did not exist. He was not permitted, however, to demonstrate his claim that many of the "blood spots" were varnish.

MAN FACES CHARGE OF DRUNK DRIVING

Gabriel Pena, 20, Westminster, driver of a car involved in a wreck at Seventeenth and Huntington Beach boulevards Sunday, was charged with drunk driving today by Captain Henry Meehan, of the California highway patrol.

Pena is confined in the Orange County hospital from severe head, face and back injuries. His companion at the time of the wreck, Martin Vigil, 23, also of Westminster, was taken home yesterday from the hospital.

Pena drove his car at a high rate of speed into a truck driven by W. Shipman, 32, Los Angeles, officers reported. The warrant for Pena's arrest was issued this morning by Justice of the Peace Kenneth Morrison.

WILL ROGERS says:

BEVERLY HILLS, Sept. 12. (To the Editor of The Register:) Talking to Oscar Lawler yesterday, he's California's most capable and common-sense lawyer. He says that the N. R. A. is nothing but a code of fair ethics of people doing business with each other. And thinks it was rather a slam against a nation that we have to be forced by government control and patriotic persuasion to do what's right. I never had thought of it in that light, but that's all it is. It looks like they are trying to get a little more conscience on the market and a little less preferred stock. It's just decency by government control.

Name and address of the complainant must be signed. However, Adkinson stressed, these names will not be revealed. They will be kept secret. All details of the violation should be given.

Outlines Plan

When a complaint has been received, the person accused will be notified by letter. On a second complaint the person complained against will be notified and he will be given an opportunity to appear before the board. Should the person complained against fail to appear, a member of the board will investigate the case personally. In the event of a person complained against proving stubborn, unwilling, or openly hostile, statement will be made to him outlining the possibilities that lie in continued opposition.

When the employer appears in response to a letter, the board should question the employer to discover if he is violating the NRA. If the questioning reveals a violation, the employer will be instructed to correct the violation and obtain his promise to abide by the provision of the NRA code or president's re-employment agreement governing the case.

If it is impossible for the adjustment board to iron out the violation and obtain compliance, the case will be reported to the county chairman, who will pass the case to the county adjustment board. Should the county adjustment board fail to obtain compliance, the case must be passed on to the state recovery board, which will take such action as is deemed necessary.

Under no circumstances, it was emphasized, should any legal action be undertaken without direct instruction from the state recovery board. In the event the state board should order any definite action, instructions to local officers will be issued.

Pointing out the difference between the codes adopted by different industries and the president's reemployment agreement, Adkinson said that it is held that the adoption of a code by an industry binds all those within the industry and that the signature to the president's reemployment agreement is a solemn and binding pact that can be and will be enforced if necessary and that the display of the blue eagle is a privilege bestowed as a result of such adoption or signature, and that the privilege continues only so long as the provisions of the law are lived up to and that on proof of violation the privilege may be withdrawn.

OPEN VERDICT RETURNED IN WIEBE DEATH

An open verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury this morning at the inquest over the body of Mrs. Helen Wiebe, 49, 1523 East First street, killed in an automobile accident Saturday morning south of San Clemente.

Coroner Earl Abbey questioned Arthur Douglas Speer, San Juan Capistrano, who was driving behind the car in which Mrs. Wiebe was driving. He told how it swerved in passing a car and turned over three times. R. L. Greenleaf, 73, 307 North Flower street, driver of the car which overturned, stood on his constitutional rights and refused to testify. Curt Wiebe, another occupant of the car and son of the dead woman, and W. J. Morris, friend of Mrs. Wiebe and identification witness, also testified.

The accident happened six miles south of the Orange county line and 10 miles south of San Clemente on the Coast highway. Mrs. Wiebe was unconscious when taken from the car and was dead when passing motorists had taken her to San Clemente. Mrs. Louise Henshaw, 103 Grand avenue, who received a skull fracture, is reported in an improved condition at the Santa Ana Valley hospital.

Funeral services for Mrs. Wiebe will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. from the Winbigger funeral home. Mrs. Wiebe, whose husband, Gustav H. RESTORATION OF RANCH IS SOUGHT Judgment for $962.69 and restoration of a 16 acre ranch leased to the defendants is sought in a suit filed in superior court by M. R. Scott naming I. R. Hall and K. Takahashi as defendants.

According to his complaint Hall and Takahashi leased the ranch near Garden Grove from Scott agreeing to pay a total rental of $3795 over a period from October 15, 1930 to August, 1933. The rental was to be paid in monthly installments ranging from $300 to $500.

According to Scott in his complaint the amount sought as judgment represents delinquent rent. The delinquency is divided $123, balance due on the payment of October 15, 1932, $420 due May 15, 1933 and $420 due August 15, last.

In addition to judgment for the alleged delinquent rent and restoration of the property to his possession Scott is asking for $5 for each day the defendants retain the property without permission and the amount of rent trebled.

Suit to recover 600 sacks of black eyed beans or $2100, their estimated value, and $1000 damages from George W. Stevens was filed in superior court today by the C. C. Collins company.

In the complaint Collins alleged that Stevens took possession of 600 sacks of the beans and refuses to give them up.

DELAY ACTION ON HIRING OF NEW TEACHERS PASADENANS GET $10,000 DAMAGE AWARD

PLACENTIA, Sept. 12. — The board of education last night considered applications and held personal interviews with nine teachers who are applying for work in the new Valencia High school. All were teachers who hold masters degrees.

The board came to no decision but adjourned to meet at 4 p. m., Wednesday for definite action. The school is to open Monday, September 18, and the members of the board anticipate employing four teachers for the positions. At present the school has 31 applicants for admission, in all four years work. Because of limited funds, and limited attendance, for the first year's work, the teaching staff will be small.

In addition to consideration of teachers, the consideration of the place for holding school was discussed. Suggestion to the board of holding this first year's session at the Yorba school, a grammar school of the union district that is at present unused, suggestions that they use the old auditorium for an assembly, and the three south rooms of the administration building on Bradford avenue, and other suggestions that they use the annex of the Bradford building, with the two north rooms of administration building, all confronted the board. No decision was reached.

The majority of the students are being "farmed out" this year to the Fullerton Union high school, and those who desire are registering at the Placentia school, to be designated as the Valencia High school.

William Lennon and his wife Mrs. Carol Lennon of Pasadena were awarded $10,000 damages this morning against C. F. Woodbury and Fred Beck, officers of the Citrus By-Products company, of Anaheim. The award was made by a jury in department one, superior court.

The Lennons were suing for a total of $36,278 damages alleging that Mrs. Lennon received a broken back and other injuries January 29, last when Woodbury's automobile, driven by Beck, turned over near San Bernardino. The accident was the climax of a party at Los Angeles Playhouse and the group was returning to their homes. Mrs. Lennon was riding in the car driven by Beck while her husband was driving another auto.

The jury verdict gave the Lennons judgment for $7500 against Beck and $2500 against Woodbury. In their complaint Mrs. Lennon asked for $25,000 for her injuries and her husband sued for $10,000 for loss of his wife's services and society and $1278 expended for medical expenses.

Live monkeys were lowered into the active volcano of Yomuri as a test by Japanese scientists who planned to descend into the crater in asbestos-lined "diving suits"; the monkeys escaped unharmed.

A new school will be temporary, as the purpose of the board is to acquire ground and to build a high school unit before next fall, and if possible during the winter session. It is anticipated federal funds will be available for the school.

ABANDON PLANS FOR NEW GAS STATION

A forgotten 10-foot set back line on North Main street was responsible for the withdrawal last night of the application of Motor Fuels, Ltd., to install a gasoline service station on the southeast corner of Fifteenth and Main streets. William Tway, secretary of the planning commission, reported that after the setback line was remembered, the operators of the proposed station determined that there was insufficient room on the lot to install the pumps. As a result, they withdrew their application and the council rescinded all action on the matter. The property had been ordered posted for special use at the recommendation of the planning commission last Tuesday night.

CALL FOR BIDS ON NEW CITY GARBAGE TRUCK

Authorization to advertise for bids for a new city garbage truck chassis at an estimated cost of $1500 was given by the city council last night on the motion of Councilman A. C. Hasenjaeger, street and sanitation commissioner.

Only one of the two garbage trucks now owned by the city is being used and is incapable of rendering adequate service, it was said. One truck is completely worn out, having started service in 1919, and has not been used for some time. The new truck will be put on full time service with the one now in use being held for emergency and utility service.

A two-ton truck will be purchased and a body constructed by city employees from parts from the old truck. A new departure will be made in the body, eliminating the heavy covers on the newer model. Folding steps for the helpers to stand on will enable the truck body to be built higher and open on the top. This will permit a hoist dumping device to be installed.

Funds for the purchase of the new truck were provided in the 1933-34 budget recently passed by the council.

WIFE, HUSBAND AND SISTER GET TERMS IN JAIL

Ending a series of petty thefts in Santa Ana, jail terms were meted out yesterday by Police Judge J. G. Mitchell to George F. Dennis, 21, 624 East Walnut street, his wife, Katherine Dennis, 19, and sister, Melva M. Dennis, 19, 1228 Cubbon street.

Dennis was committed to the county jail for six months, and the two women each received 90 day sentences. Dennis finished serving a six month term for petty theft of chickens several weeks ago, officers reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis were charged with the theft of some porch chairs on August 18 from the home of Albert Schultz, 722 Halliday street, after the chairs were located by police at Leurs Second Hand store, 303 Spurgeon street.

Melvin Dennis, arrested at the home of her brother, admitted stealing articles from parked cars. The last theft was on Saturday when she stole a dress and shoes from the automobile of Mrs. L. L. Beauchand, 1326 West Fourth street, while the Beauchand machine was parked at Second and Broadway. Officers also confiscated a dress she stole from a car on Second street between Ross and Birch streets and are holding it at the police station, since no one has reported having a dress stolen. The owner is asked to identify and claim it.

COUNCIL GRANTS 3 BEER LICENSES

Three off-sale licenses for the sale of alcoholic beverages were granted by the city council last night and one was denied, following reports of the chief of police, city attorney and health inspector.

START WORK ON NEW CITY HALL SURFACING OF QUESTION STILL ORTEGA ROAD UP IN THE AIR

Work on surfacing the 26-mile length of the Ortega highway between San Juan Capistrano and Elsinore is to be started this week, it was announced today by officials of the joint highway district in charge of building the road.

The job is being handled by the V. W. Dennis Construction company of San Diego, under a contract totaling $48,044, recently awarded by the directors of the district, which is formed by Orange and Riverside counties and the state.

The low bid on the surfacing job, $44,085.50 submitted by Kocacavich and Price, of Southgate, was withdrawn after a formal statement was made to the board to the effect that recently advancing prices of materials and labor would make their figure too low to be profitable. Bids ranged as high as $82,000.

The San Diego company already has started moving machinery to the job. The oil-mix surface is to be laid 20 feet wide over the entire route and the contract should be completed not later than the middle of November, it is estimated, as the Dennis company is planning to work sufficient men and machinery to surface at least one mile per day.

Santa Ana's proposed new city hall plans were still up in the air today although City Attorney Clyde Downing said that he would be given definite information on the legal phases of the matter confronting this city sometime this week from Los Angeles.

Downing and Mayor Paul Wittmer were requested by the city council last week to secure details of the procedure necessary to go about getting a city hall. Downing conferred with federal officials last week and was promised the data in the next five days. One of the main questions is whether a bond issue will be necessary in case the city council decides to go ahead with the building plans.

Although the councilmen have virtually dropped consideration on possible sites, it is understood on reliable authority that a well-known large business building recently vacated, located in the vicinity of the quarters now occupied in the Santa Ana building at Second and Broadway, will be offered to the council in the near future as temporary or permanent quarters for city offices. Financial terms of the deal have not been divulged and the councilmen are non-committal on the offer.

SHE ALMOST LOST HER HUSBAND

Women Should Not Grow Careless About Their Weight
She made the mistake so many women make. She grew careless about her figure, allowed herself to get fat. And her husband—well, slender women do attract.

Ask your druggist for a package of mint-flavored Harvin Salts, which contains the famous Harvin Plan. Take half a teaspoonful of the salts every morning in a glass of water and follow the Plan.

In a few short weeks your friends will be amazed at the change. Surplus fat will have disappeared, your figure will be slim—the kind of figure men admire and women envy, and your complexion, too, will be clear, healthy, radiant.

Mint-flavored Harvin Salts, as pleasant to take as an after-dinner mint, stimulate sluggish glands, the cause of overweight in 80 out of 100 persons. They also keep your intestinal tract free from poisonous waste, and prevent indigestion, acidity, and other ailments. Money back if not pleased.—Adv.

Start today to lose fat, to have a slender figure. Ask at Walgreen's or any drug store for a package of mint-flavored Harvin Salts. The cost is trifling. Harvin Salts do not make you nauseous. Money back if not pleased.—Adv.

"I've kept track of the money it saved us this month"

"HERE it is—all put down. Whenever my telephone relieved me of a trip downtown, I made note of the nickel, dime or quarter saved. They soon amounted to more than the price of telephone service, and I also have the telephone for calling friends, making appointments, hearing from others and being in touch with the world. It's true, and I've proved it—the telephone in the home costs so little and does so much that it simply doesn't pay to be without one."

SPANISH VILLAGE ENROLLS 77 PUPILS

SAN CLEMENTE, Sept. 12.—First day enrollment in the San Clemente grammar rooms totaled 77. Principal Floyd Lindsay states this is an increase over last year. He expects additional names to bring it up to 85. Twelve have enrolled in the eighth grade, with 13 last year. The decision last spring to discontinue the local school bus this year on account of the expense to the district, was overruled and the entire force, teachers, school janitor and bus operator, remains unchanged. Minor repairs made in the school building during the summer and a general clean-up have placed the property in condition for another year's work. Twenty San Clemente students are attending high school in San Juan Capistrano. The teachers are: Floyd Lindsay, principal, seventh and eighth grades; intermediate, fourth, fifth and sixth, Ona Belle Johnson; primary, first, second and third, Mrs. Mary Pearl Barnett. The school bus is driven by Mrs. Ralph Rogers. The janitor is Walter Rogers. The Bible was written by degrees during a period of 1600 years.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

-- News Behind The News --

WASHINGTON
By George Durno

INTERVENTION

Secretary of the Navy Claude Augustus Swanson barged magnificently out of the White House the other day and announced with an important flourish he was "en route to Havana!" and embarrassed the Administration not a little.

The afternoon papers of that day gave Swanson's announcement eight-column headlines, and why not? Cuba's latest revolution had just popped and the vanguard of our battle flotilla had received orders to proceed there under forced draft. It looked as if the Cabinet officer was being rushed down to take personal charge of intervention.

Soon after the papers appeared a hurry call was sent for the newspaper reporters. In fact, the call came from two quarters.

Two different high sources explained what has since been printed—that Swanson had planned for some months to visit the west coast aboard the Cruiser Indianapolis and might just incidentally stop off at Havana long enough to see his "old friend," Ambassador Sumner Welles. And these administration spokesmen went further. They deprecated the idea of intervention and said they hoped it wouldn't have to come. But if it did, they asserted, Swanson wouldn't be in charge of it.

SECOND BASE

The unhorsing of President de Cespedes by the rank and file caught the State Department flat-footed, incidentally. Ambassador Welles had been able to forecast some time in advance every move of the revolutionists up to that point. He failed to clock the coup of the enlisted men.

Assistant Secretary of State Jefferson Caffery, who has charge of Latin-American affairs and is shortly to change jobs with Welles, had a press conference immediately after it broke. Caffery went to great pains to outline what a swell job Welles had done and point out how difficult it would have been to scent in advance the ousting of de Cespedes. "In other words, Mr. Secretary," suggested a reporter as the conference ended, "Welles hit a home run but forgot to touch second base."

Caffery looked a little puzzled. Apparently he is not a baseball fan.

In any event, shortly after they had gotten back to the press room the news men were recalled to his office. Some one must have outlined the rudiments of baseball to the Secretary in the interim. He earnestly assured the gentlemen of the press he had not been trying to pan Welles by indirection.

No. He had sought only to extol his colleague.

TARIFFS

The switch in tariff experts for NRA is said by those on the inside to have a protectionist-free trade row back of it.

F. O. Billings was sent back peremptorily to his Tariff Commission job in New York and replaced by Oscar Ryder, one of the Commission experts. The change was made immediately after a huddle between General Hugh Johnson, Chairman R. L. O'Brien and Vice Chairman T. W. Page, of the Commission.

When asked for an explanation, Johnson is quoted as having said: "He (Billings) didn't belong here in the first place."

Billings is reported to be a protectionist while Ryder leans more toward the old Democratic idea of freest trade possible. Billings was selected originally by Deputy Administrator John M. Hancock, since resigned.

Organized labor, which wants heavy duties slapped on foreign imports, is looking on with considerable interest. The man holding this job will have charge of dealing with the claims of code-signers. These days they must have tariff boosts or embargoes if they are to live with the Blue Eagle.

SHY

Shipping men are disturbed because General T. Q. Ashburn, president of the Inland Waterways corporation, failed to show up at a little get-together meeting the other day. The corporation, a federal agency, runs barge lines in the Mississippi river.

Deputy Administrator William E. Davis, who handled the shipping code for NRA, arranged the party. It was his idea to get government shipping agencies under the code so as to eliminate possible unfair competition. Admiral Hutch L. Cone, who speaks for the U. S. Lines and the now-consolidated Shipping Board, was present to meet his private competitors but Ashburn was not.

It may be the General remembered the trouble he always has had getting Congressional appropriations for his barge lines and decided to stay away from a new controversial subject.

FORESTERS

About 125,000 hardy young men between the ages of 18 and 25 are going to have an opportunity to enlist in President Roosevelt's forest army beginning September 30.

That's about the number expected to drop out of C. C. C. camps on expiration of their first six-month term, judging from reports coming in. Uncle Sam isn't going to take any chances on these boys. Their enlistments run out around the last of October. If they stay on until then they'll each have to be issued $50 or $60 worth of winter clothing.

Accordingly the whole 300,000 are going to be mustered out arbitrarily on September 30. Those who want to re-enlist will get heavy clothes. The others will be sent back to conditioning camps to await the end of their enlistments if they so desire.

Nearly 900 of the 1466 camps probably can be maintained all winter. About 575 new camps will break ground in warmer climates.

NOTES

Gus Gennerich, the President's personal bodyguard, used to be a member of the bicycle squad of the New York police back in the days when a speed faster than 12 miles an hour drew a $10 fine. . . . Later Gus graduated to motorcycle work in plain clothes.

Lieut. Charles Benter is celebrating the 15th anniversary of this year of his organization of the N. S. Navy Band. . . . Back in 1918 they gave him four men and then sent him on a recruiting tour to bring it up to the present 80 pieces.

CUBA

The latest eruption in Cuba is as different from the traditional Latin-American revolution as scarlet fever is from chicken pox.

This is no good-natured game of political hide-and-seek between the ins and outs with a few casualties thrown in to make the game exciting. It cuts deeper than that. There is more than a chance parallel between the Czar-Kerensky-Lenin sequence in Russia and the Machado-Cespedes-Junta sequence in Cuba.

It isn't yet a communist show but it could easily become one. The reds are well aware of their golden opportunity. Their best organizers from Mexico and Argentina are on the job. So far their converts are few in numbers but ugly of voice. And the hopeless economic misery of the average Cuban is fertile soil for their seed. Moscow would not object to planting a flourishing colony on our doorstep.

OUTLOOK

Not even the best informed experts will hazard a guess about the final outcome in Cuba except that there is a lot more chaos in store. It will be nothing short of a miracle if we can duck the necessity for intervention. Anti-American feeling among the masses has been skillfully stirred to a boil and is bound to bust loose in overt action.

There are quite a few Cubans—not among those now on top—who would welcome intervention as the only chance to regain stability. But the students and the army are violently opposed. The students regard it as a point of honor. The army wants to keep its position of power, which it would lose if we stepped in.

And the British sit back and chuckle and wait for the Latin trade harvest to fall in their laps.

LINEUP

But it may not be as simple as that. New Yorkers who know the Latin pay high tribute to the President for his skill in bowing South America in on the party.

It's hard for your neighbor to hold a grudge when you pat him on the back and tell him what a big shot he is. Here's the way the Latin countries will probably line up if it comes to a showdown:

Brazil will be on our side. That's certain. There is better than an even chance that Argentina will line up with us, too, in spite of the noisy anti-gringo faction which has been carefully fostered by Britain. The Argentine land owners are in the saddle politically and they are mostly pro-American if not only because they hate the British-owned railroads like poison. Moreover Argentine pride has been boosted several notches by the fact that we consulted with her. Uruguay and Paraguay will string along with Argentina. Peru may also join up with this group—not for any love of the United States but because Chile and Bolivia will be on the other side.

Mexico will lead the anvil chorus against Yankee imperialism. She has been longing for just such a chance to assert her Latin leadership against Argentina and will she lap it up! Colombia will have plenty to say, too. Chile, Bolivia, Venezuela, Ecuador and the Central American countries will also become hot and bothered.

If the line-up works this way we don't need to be too scared about losing trade to Britain. Argentina is the key. Mexico may threaten a boycott against American goods but it would be virtually impossible to make it work.

REMEDY

Influential New Yorkers will tell you that the best thing we could do for Cuba and ourselves would be to give the Cubans a break on their sugar quota. This is their only chance to get out of the economic swamp. It would be something like taking out fire insurance after the house has burned down but even at this late date it might help to stave off communism.

BRITAIN

A New Yorker just back from England reports that the British are pleased with recent progress out of the depression. British security financing during August was greater than any August since the war. Of course that included refunding as well as new issues. Opponents of the Securities Act—who believe that "securities" should grow like leaves on the trees—are making caustic capital out of the contrast with stagnation in industrial financing here. The heavy industries in England seem to be making an excellent comeback.

RUSSIA

Plenty is brewing under the surface about Russian trade and Russian recognition. A New York group is working on details of a corporation to handle Russian credit problems with the indirect backing of the government. They are almost ready to shoot the works. Big news is likely to develop over night in the near future.

SIDELIGHTS

One American in Cuba flew a big Belgian flag on his automobile. . . . He figured the Cubans wouldn't know what flag it was but at least they would deduce he wasn't Yankee. . . . The Erie wreck should help NRA. . . . The railroads will be urged to replace wooden cars with steel without waiting for legislation. . . . And is the steel industry's mouth watering! . . . Russian bonds have had a slight pick-up. . . . Some of the boys think they are a good gamble. Copyright, 1933, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Lands 20-Pound White Sea Bass

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Sept. 12.—George Imada, Los Angeles, fishing from the salt boat "Earley," caught a 20-pound white sea bass Sunday. Four huge black bass were hooked but they tore up the tackle of the fishermen, one breaking a line that was as large as a mail rope. A large catch was brought in by H. O. Proehl, of Highland Park, and F. N. Turner, of El Paso, Tex., a guest of Proehl. Some fine yellowtail and white sea bass, calico bass and barracuda were caught.

Bowers Memorial Museum To Be Opened In Few Weeks

DISPLAY CASES FOR EXHIBITS ORDERED BUILT

FORGOTTEN MAN HAS RIVAL IN $3632 FUND

Work of building permanent displays and showcases for the new Bowers Memorial museum will be started at once and the building will be opened for limited use within several weeks, it was decided following discussion at the city council meeting last night.

M. E. Ward, city employee detailed to the museum, will begin building wall exhibits and showcases in accordance to the plans and blueprints prepared by the architects of the building. As rapidly as the cases are constructed, exhibits will be accepted and the building made available to the general public. Expenditures will be limited but sufficient furnishings will be added to provide adequate quarters.

The auditorium on the second floor of the building will be fixed up for the use of the Orange County Historical society and other organizations. The apartment which was cleaned and equipped so that Ward can take up his residence there.

City Attorney Clyde Downing gave a legal opinion at the meeting on the obligation of the city in finishing the museum as outlined in the will. He said that the council was bound to build, furnish and maintain the museum as such in a reasonable manner, but the trustees were very reasonable in making allowances for the depression and resulting decrease in the value of the estate securities.

He ended his opinion with the recommendation that the museum be opened with one or two limited displays to serve as the nucleus of an expansion program.

At a later date, a curator may be appointed by the city on the recommendation of the museum board.

MANY ATTRACTIONS AT BIG FAIR

A colorful Oriental decorative motif will form the background for the dazzling feature exhibits and displays of the big tri-county fair for Los Angeles, Orange and Riverside counties during its showing at Pomona September 15 to 24. Shown here are some of the highlights of the approaching event.

STATE LEGION HEAD URGES FIGHT TO AID DISABLED; INSTALLS POST OFFICERS

Declaring that the American Legion had "taken it on the chin" last year, Homer Chaillaux, of Inglewood, commander of the California department, told 150 Legionnaires gathered in the auditorium at Dana Point last night that the 900,000 members in the United States are preparing for a new battle to bring justice to 120,000 men and women he declared had suffered through the national economy program. His dramatic speech, at times brought the men to their feet with cheers, followed a colorful ceremony during which he installed the officers of six Orange county posts.

"There is a different spirit in the American Legion this year," said the speaker with much emphasis. "We took it on the chin from the national legislative program and that shows we are not as yet a perfect body. We didn't make the right kind of a battle or it would have been a victory instead of a defeat. But we are going into the battle again and this time we will win."

"In the northern district of California there are 1581 cases of veterans with service-connected disabilities who have had their compensations cut, without cause, to a fraction of what they should receive. These cases never should have been classed as presumptive. In the Los Angeles office 2130 cases are being investigated. In the country there are 130,000 men and women who need our help and they are going to get it. You must carry this fight to your congressmen. Make them go on record as to how they will stand on the question of these men and women of the American Legion."

Lieut. B. P. Donnelly of the Capistrano Beach post presided prior to the installation, and A. J. Albert of Laguna Beach was sergeant-at-arms. Donnelly presented Chaillaux with a gavel made from the propeller of the plane used by Lieut.-Com. John Rogers at the time of the famous flight to the Hawaiian Islands when the ship was forced down and the crew nearly lost their lives. Fred Sidesbottom of Anaheim, past commander, and now chairman of the state membership committee, was presented with a fine watch by his comrades.

The following officers were installed:

Anaheim Post No. 72—Ray Van Wagoner, commander; Clyde V. Webb, first vice commander; Frank Osborn, second vice commander; J. H. Heffron, adjutant; Ed Hund, sergeant-at-arms; R. C. Costello, chaplain.

Costa Mesa Post No. 455—LeRoy Anderson, commander; Glenn Cramer, first vice commander; Emmett Allan, second vice commander; Andrew Mandery, adjutant; Reuben Day, sergeant-at-arms; William St. Clair, adjutant.

San Clemente Post No. 331—Roland Peterson, commander; C. M. Adair, first vice commander; Perciles Stavron, second vice commander; V. D. Bailey, adjutant and finance officer; C. W. Wells, sergeant-at-arms; Earl Moore, chaplain.

Capistrano Post No. 358—Mervin H. Gallagher, commander; Pat Martin, first vice commander; Fred Rosenbaum, second vice commander; Ben F. Edens, adjutant; Father Arthur J. Hutchinson, chaplain; Joe Hun, sergeant-at-arms; B. P. Donnelly, historian.

HOME OWNERS ASK $1,000,000 TO SAVE HOMES

With more than a million dollars in loans applied for in Orange county, the Home Owners' Loan Corporation probably will start making completed loans within a week, according to H. M. Secrest, representative of the corporation.

Secrest said that the million dollars represents approximately 250 applications ranging in amounts from $2500 to $3000 on small homes in various sections of the county.

In making the completed loans, he said, the most urgent cases will be given first attention in order to save the homes from foreclosure. After the urgent cases applications will be handled in the order in which they are filed.

Secrest said, "We want to save the homes from foreclosure and in cases where such action is imminent immediate action is being taken. It would be a shame for an applicant to lose his home because of a few days delay."

Secrest receives applications for federal aid to home owners at his office, 414 1-2 North Main street.

Pay Phone Thief Reported Active

Operations of a thief who may have been responsible for the tampering with pay telephones in Santa Ana and Newport Beach were being investigated today by sheriff's and police officers, following discovery that three phones were damaged over the week end.

The telephone in the Newport Beach post office was pried off the wall and robbed sometime Saturday night while another phone in the Sea Shell cafe was also damaged. D. M. Becker, reporting for the telephone company in Santa Ana, said that one of the phones in the booths at the Santa Ana office, Fifth and Bush streets, had been pried off the wall but not robbed, sometime Sunday or Saturday night.

STERILIZATION TO CURB CRIME URGED

PASADENA, Sept. 13. — Sterilization of the unfit will help to reduce crime, in the opinion of the Human Betterment Foundation.

While the Foundation does not advocate the sterilization of criminals as such, or as a punishment for crime, it reports that feeble-mindedness, insanity and epilepsy are much more prevalent among criminals than in the normal population. Habitual criminals make a worse showing than the average criminal.

Since all of these conditions depend to some extent on inheritance, the cutting off of weak strains in the population by a selective sterilization law such as is now in force in 27 American states and also in numerous other countries, is regarded as a valuable, though indirect, means of combating the ever increasing tide of crime. It will reduce the number of persons who are likely to drift into criminality.

BEACH MOTORIST ROBBED OF $200

Forced at the point of a gun to give up nearly $200 and then lie down in his car while two bandits sped away, Joe Smith, 221 Nineteenth street, Newport Beach, was robbed yesterday morning in the large parking lot in the center of the beach city, according to police reports.

Smith was just getting into his car when the two approached him and held him up. The men took all his money, estimated to be from $150 to $200, and then dashed away in a large car, Smith reported to police. He said one of the men was dark, talked with a broken accent, weighed about 130 pounds and appeared to be about 30 years old, while the other was smaller, about 35 years of age and dressed in dark clothes.

Activity

With fall's definite arrival, Girl Scouts of Mrs. R. R. Russell's Troop No. 1 are making preparations for an active school year in which Scout activities promise to play an interesting part. Election of officers and patrol leaders for the coming year is to take place when the troop meets this week.

High school girls of the troop have formed a senior division, and plan to meet Tuesday of each week from 5 to 7 p. m. to work out camp cooking problems, practice judging of distances and weights, and study Orange County and California planning. In addition to these weekly sessions, girls of this advanced group will assist younger girls of the troop in Scout problems.

Very young girls interested in Girl Scout work have been organized into a Brownie Pack for girls between the ages of seven and 10 years. Miss Doll Silver, lieutenant, is to act as leader for this group, which is expected to carry on regular activities from now on.

With the Scout work functioning so well here, it is hoped that a general meeting place for all of the city's troops may be obtained. The girls feel that they would be able to erect a little clubhouse if a lot were available for this use.

New members of the local Girl Scout committee, Mrs. Roy Russell, Mrs. Rose Edwards and Mrs. J. D. Watkins, are working with the holdover members, Mrs. A. W. Rutan, Mrs. Clarence Tedford, Mrs. Iva Webber, Mrs. R. H. Snyder and Mrs. Carl Monk.

College Freshmen
Enjoy Tea Dance

As a pleasant climax to freshman days of last week at Santa Ana junior college was the dance held Friday afternoon in Andrews gymnasium.

This enjoyable affair was planned by members of Los Gitanas and Brotherhood of Bachelors in conjunction with the new social commissioner, Miss Kathryn Belmont. Special dances heightened the interest, and fostered the "get-acquainted" spirit.

Baskets of zinnias and dahlias were placed about the floor. Cally Holden's Ballroom orchestra from Laguna Beach was secured for the affair by Bruce Handy and George Curtis, Bachelors and Miss Pauline Wells, Los Gitanas member.

Miss members attending were Miss Agnes Todd Miller, Mrs. J. Parley Smith and Dr. Murray Bates.

Mrs. W. B. Humphrey is program chairman and Mrs. Richard Martin is serving as chairman of the hostess committee.

Couple's Friends Join
In Anniversary Celebration

Since coming here four years ago to make their home in Santa Ana, Mr. and Mrs. Horace M. Culter have made many friends, a large group of whom were privileged to share with them their golden wedding anniversary observance of the past week.

The couple's associates in the First Baptist church planned the general observance, an open house affair held during the afternoon and evening in the Culter home, 823 South Van Ness avenue. At this time more than 100 friends gathered to compliment the honored pair.

Flowers, golden and yellow-blue blooms predominating, decked the home. Guests attending during the afternoon included former students of Mr. Culter in Kansas, where he taught school for 40 years. The Rev. Frank Durham, at one time pastor of Emporia, Kans., and Mrs. Durham, were among those present.

During the evening an informal program was given. The Rev. Harry Evan Owings, pastor of First Baptist church, gave a short talk. Mrs. M. Phillips contributed a group of old-time songs, singing "When You and I Were Young, Maggie" and other appropriate selections. Refreshments of punch and wafers were served during the afternoon and evening. Assisting with this hospitality were the Misses Mary Nalle, Katherine Robbins, Martha Hume and Lulu Hodges.

Family Affair
Preceding the open house affair by one day was a family dinner with which Mr. and Mrs. Culter entertained in their home. This little observance bore special significance, for Mrs. J. N. Chamberlain of this city and Mr. Culter's sister, Miss Grey Culter of Riverside, who served as bridesmaids at the ceremony 50 years ago, were able to be present. Judson Parker of Wichita, Kans., who had attended Mr. Culter as best man, could not be here for the golden anniversary celebration.

Present for the dinner with the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Culter, were their son and daughter-in-law and granddaughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Culter and daughter, Barbara, of New Westminster, B. C.; Mrs. Bessie Dalton and daughter, Mrs. Mamie Baskerville of Los Angeles; Mr. Culter's cousin and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Culter and daughter, Miss Edith Culter, El Modena; the hosts' niece, Miss Ruth Fleishman of Los Angeles, and Mrs. J. H. Chamberlain and Miss Mary Nalle, this city, and Miss Grey Culter, Riverside. Miss Nalle assisted in serving.

Couple's Early Life
Mrs. Culter, born in Iowa, was daughter of the Rev. William Parker. She lived in Illinois for some time, and in 1876 moved to Kansas, where she taught school for eight years.

Mr. Culter, also born in Illinois, moved to Kansas with his parents in 1871. He attended Agricultural college at Manhattan, Kans., Shurtleff college, Upper Alton, Ill., and Kansas State Normal. The ceremony which united him and Miss Parker was read by the bride's uncle, the Rev. Moses Parker, in the First Baptist church of Clearwater, Kans. Both the bride and bridegroom taught school for the first winter of their married life.

Mr. Culter spent three years in a drug store, and then resumed school teaching, keeping to this profession for 40 years. Leaving Kansas in 1927, the Culters made their home in Riverside for two years before coming to Santa Ana to live.

Five sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Culter. One of the family, Dr. Clyde Culter, passed away during the World war. Two sons, Harold and Carl Culter, make

Bride and Bridegroom
Expected to Visit
Here

Happiest of wishes for a bright future await the former Miss Elizabeth Louise Griffith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Griffith, 1714 North Broadway, when, as Mrs. Joseph Ashton Flynn, she arrives with Mr. Flynn for an extended visit with her parents here.

Mrs. Flynn is well known in Santa Ana where she has lived since grammar school days, attending Polytechnic high school and Santa Ana junior college, augmenting her term there with a course at the University of California at Berkeley from where she was graduated in 1929. Since that time Mrs. Flynn has taught in the Jefferson elementary school.

Mrs. Flynn's marriage comes as quite a surprise to her friends here who thought her merely spending the summer in Berkeley as a respite from her school duties here. But culminating the pleasant weeks in the north was her marriage on September 2, in the home of Mr. Flynn's father, Joseph W. Flynn, in Berkeley.

Judge Edward J. Tyrell, an old friend of the family officiated in the presence of a few relatives and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn R. Haas, Bert Hindman and Paul Flynn.

Mr. Flynn is a graduate of the University of California also, and has been identified with the investment security business, the San Francisco bay region since 1925.

The bride's parents are well known here where Mr. Griffith is a prominent manufacturer. The bridegroom's father is printer emeritus at the University of California, having been associated as an instructor in that institution for more than 40 years.

Santa Anans to Spend Teaching Year in Constantinople

Arrival Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Smith and the latter's sister, Miss Preble Drake, at their home, 1717 North Broadway, from an extended stay at their summer home in the north channel of Lake Huron, Canada, gave to various Santa Ana friends, more detailed information regarding the summer experiences and the winter plans of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin C. Flint, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Flint (the latter will be remembered as Miss Rose Marie Smith) who spent last year in Paris where both studied at the Sorbonne, have returned to Europe and Mr. Flint will teach this winter at Robert College in Constantinople, an American institution founded in the cause of bettering international relations. Friends who have watched with interest the scholastic career of the young man, are delighted at the recognition accorded him in this appointment. He will teach both history and English in the college.

Mr. and Mrs. Flint spent five weeks at the Great Lakes summer home of the Smiths, and on August 19 sailed on the Italian liner Rex, for Genoa. Their subsequent voyage down the Dalmatian coast from Trieste, was one of unusual interest as they visited various of the countless islands dotting the coast line, and some of the principal cities. Proceeding inland to Jugo-Slavia, they visited Sarajevo, with its tragic history, and other cities, spending two weeks in this interesting country before sailing from Brindesia for Constantinople.

Many Guests Attend
Picnic at Park

About 600 guests who have been attending dances held two nights weekly in Orange American Legion hall took part in a picnic dinner given the past week at Irvine park.

Hosts were Ray and his Red Shirt Ramblers orchestra, who provide music for the dances. The group includes Ray Gilbert, leader; Ray Long, Bud Paschell, Mrs. J. N. Erics, Ralph Best, Bob Richards and Clay Minnix, the latter master of ceremonies.

Arrangements were in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Minnix, assisted by Mrs. Clay Minnix, Mrs. Ray Gilbert, Mrs. Minnie Graham, Mrs. Charles Keene, Mrs. Lon Cliff, Mrs. John Bush, Mrs. Bob Richards, Mr. and Mrs. J. Erics, Lee Erhart, Mrs. Jack McCarthy and Ben Walker.

Asters and other fall flowers enhanced the charm of the home. A business session, in charge of the president, Mrs. Emma Mosbaugh, and social matters which interested guests during the afternoon, were climaxed with a delightful tea hour when apple pie a la mode was served.

It was regretted that two members, Mrs. Kate Hendricks and Mrs. Abbie Birdsell, were ill and unable to be present for the monthly gathering.

A special guest was Mrs. Julia Cosad. Others present were Messrs. Emma Mosbaugh, Sarah Alford, Helen Aubin, Joanna Cole, Margaret Culver, Fannie Cunningham, Rose Diers, Eugenia Harvey, Alice Kryhl, Elizabeth McLeod, Anna Pendleton, Mary Ramsdell, Martha Ritchey, Dora Spangler, Abbie Vandermast, Ella Wilson, Alice Yount and Hannah Huntington.

Mrs. Joanna Cole is to be hostess at the next meeting, October 5, entertaining in her home, 711 North Main street.

Ceremony in Orange
Interests County Friends

A wedding of interest to Orange county friends was that of Mrs. Diana Templeton of Los Angeles to Michael Mudrock of the same city, the ceremony taking place in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth King, 215 North Cambridge street, Orange, at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening.

The marriage service was read by the Rev. Harry E. Owings, pastor of the First Baptist church of Santa Ana. The bride, a lovely blonde, wore a formal gown of empire blue velvet and a corsage of pale pink roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. M. A. Barr, who was frocked in claret crepe and who wore a corsage of white gardenias and maiden hair fern. The bride's brother, M. A. Barr, served Mr. Mudrock as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. King, close friends of the bride, together with Mrs. King's mother, Mrs. Alice Deming, of Monrovia, decked the home for the happy occasion, using a profusion of gladiolus shading from snowy white to delicate tints of pink and deepest rose. Two baskets of these blossoms were placed before the fireplace. On the mantel white tapers burned in low all-weather candelabra. Tall torches held additional slender tapers, and it was by the soft glow of this light that the impressive ceremony was read.

Following the ceremony, molded loaves were served with coffee and the elaborately decorated wedding cake at a long table centered with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The tiny figures and their attendants were placed in an aisle of pink and white candles glowing softly in small white candelabra at each side of the tables. The candelabra were used as place cards. Mrs. Deming presided at the coffee urn and the bride cut the wedding cake. Decorations for the table stressed the chosen motif of pink and white with touches of pale blue.

The bride, who has many friends in this county, was formerly employed in the laboratory at the Hayes Clinic at Monrovia, and her husband holds a responsible position with the Los Angeles Gas and Light company. The young couple will make their home in Los Angeles following a honeymoon to be spent at the Mission Inn at Riverside and Lake Arrowhead.

Mrs. King wore a gown of midnight blue crepe in receiving her guests and her mother, Mrs. Deming, was in a smart frock of black and white figured silk. Present other than the bride and bridegroom were Mrs. Deming, the Rev. Harry Owings, Miss Diana May Templeton, little daughter of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. King and the sons of the home, Richard and Tommy King.

Dissolve the yeast cake in 1-4 cup tepid water and add to the milk when it has cooled, together with the beaten eggs and flour. Beat thoroughly, with spoon, then with egg beater. Cover and let stand until light, beat the batter down and pour into oiled muffin tin, the tins half full, and let rise until very light. Bake in 425 degree oven (medium hot) about 15 minutes.

There are approximately 9000 calories in this recipe, the quantity making about 2 dozen muffins. These calories are energy and fat makers.

If you have a few extra pears, make Mint Pears for dessert, and salads; make a very heavy syrup, drop in the halved pears and cook until tender. Pack in jars, color the hot syrup with green vegetable coloring and flavor it with 6 drops of peppermint essence to each quart. Fill the jars, adjust tops and stand them end for end until they color nicely.

Laguna May Seek Federal Aid For New High School

BOARD EXPECTS TO HOLD MASS MEETING SOON

LAGUNA BEACH, Sept. 12.—Solving of the local high school problem through federal aid loomed as a possibility yesterday when G. B. Dunham, president of the elementary school board, announced that a meeting of interested citizens will be called in the near future to consider such a step.

A special pamphlet has been issued within the last few days by the National Recovery administration specifying the form of application for loans to school districts for building purposes. Experts will be invited to address the meeting and it is probable that one will be employed to steer the high school board in the matter after it has been sworn in on Thursday of this week.

The fact that the boundaries of the two districts are identical will be of benefit. Dunham had a plan in mind, if it was decided to use the present grammar school plant for the high school, to have the high school district purchase the land and buildings and use the money to construct two new elementary schools, one in McKnight's Addition and one in Arch Beach. He was informed that the federal loan could not be used for such a purpose. However, it would be possible for the high school district to lease the grammar school plant and the elementary school could secure the loan for the new schools. Under the federal plan there would be an outright grant of 30 per cent. If the bonds could not be sold at four per cent interest, then the government would take them over. It also is Dunham's information that material prices are going up.

MOVE TO NAME WILLIS WARNER TO BEACH CITY COUNCIL FAILS; $5000 WAGE CONTRACT SOUGHT

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Sept. 12.—The prospect of seeing a new councilman appointed to succeed J. E. Huston, councilman and lately named as temporary postmaster here, drew a large group of citizens to the Huntington Beach council chamber Monday night. The audience was doomed to disappointment.

Councilman Ed B. Stevens, declaring that Councilman Huston was automatically out of the city council by accepting the postmaster position, nominated Willis H. Warner, member of the high school board of education, and local hardware man, to succeed Huston. Councilman John H. Marion seconded the nomination.

When put to a vote, Warner failed of election, Councilman King and Mayor Conrad voting no and Councilmen Stevens and Marion voting yes. Councilman Huston, who has not resigned, was absent. Mayor Conrad said he thought the attempt to put Warner on the council was premature as Huston had not yet resigned. He also said that he did not like the idea of one member of the council fostering the appointment of a new member.

John B. Barlow, operator of the Huntington Beach plunge, said he had caused petitions to be circulated among the voters asking the election of Warner. C. G. Ward, merchant, said that "700 of the best people in town signed the petitions."

Others spoke in favor of Warner. C. R. Furr read the petition favoring Warner. He said it carried 700 names, mostly of citizens and voters, some few residing outside the city in nearby districts. The vote on the Stevens motion to appoint Warner closed the discussion. During the discussion Councilman Stevens declared that he had originated the movement to have Warner put on the council.

Councilman John H. Marion introduced a resolution to the effect that a bond of $5000 to guarantee payment of the payroll on all drilling of oil wells in the field, be required of all operators. The matter was referred to City Attorney Ray Overacker for a legal opinion.

London A. Wells, local painter, put in a proposal to paint the outside of the city hall at a cost of $230. The matter was referred to the committee on buildings and grounds.

John H. Eader, president of the elementary school board, in a letter to the council, asked that the city discontinue using men under the R. F. C. in order that the school district might use these men in the work of rebuilding the elementary school structures destroyed by the earthquake.

A report on city finances was given by the city treasurer, Bayard Butcher. The bond funds are carrying the required quotas in the general and music and promotion bonds.

Jack Newman proposed to hold a Friday night dance each week at Memorial hall. The matter was referred to the committee on public buildings.

Several permits for new business establishments were acted upon, including the following: Mrs. Ada Golden, health center at 250 Elmira street; Grace Overacker, of Los Angeles, a restaurant at 1508 Olive avenue; H. T. Rork, cafe, 427 Main street; C. E. Exline, lunch wagon; J. W. Sullivan, class two beer license.

Mrs. May S. Jackson and the Rev. Luther A. Arthur, members of the library board, were reappointed by Mayor Conrad, their terms having expired.

Bayard Butcher, city treasurer, announced the appointment of Mrs. Grace Brose as assistant treasurer. The office she held under the former city treasurer, Harvey S. Young.

The Garden club was granted permission to use Memorial hall for its flower show October 11 and 12.

1400 STUDENTS ENTER SCHOOLS IN BEACH AREA

NEWPORT BEACH, Sept. 12.—Approximately 1400 pupils thronged the schools of the Newport harbor district yesterday, when the grammar schools and the Newport Harbor Union High school opened their doors for the fall and winter term. The high school registered slightly over 350 in all grades and it is expected that the total enrollment will exceed the 400 mark by the time all registrations are in. It was stated by Sidney H. Davidson, principal.

The Newport Beach grammar school closed the first day with 328 boys and girls enrolled. Principal H. O. Engler stated that he expected the enrollment to climb to a 10 per cent increase or more within a few weeks. A final inspection of the main building shows that the entire building, excepting the east six rooms, is safe for use as class rooms. Two new rooms have been added to the main building and there is a separate room for shop and manual training.

The Costa Mesa grammar school started the year with an excess of 700 pupils. Principal Adams predicts an increase of 10 or 15 per cent over the initial enrollment. A final report on the building from damages due to the earthquake has not been made by the state, and the same arrangement for classes as at the close of last year is being carried out.

Murder at Bridge

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Special Investigator Dundee, having dinner with Penny Crain, the Sunday after Juanita Selim is murdered at bridge, tells her latest findings. Suspicion centers heaviest on Ralph Hammond, in love with Nita, who came to Nita's house the morning of the murder to estimate the cost of remodeling the attic and found in the attic bedroom traces of Dexter Sprague's occupancy there.

Polly Beale, calling for Nita, finds her gone, and seeing the state Ralph is in, telephones Nita and breaks the luncheon engagement and forces Ralph to have lunch with her and his brother Clive. Dundee suspects that Ralph shot Nita with a gun and Maxim silenced the noise that afternoon from Judge Marlowe's murder, but the case is stronger against Ralph. Lydia, the maid, who was horribly burned by Nita and to whom Nita lent all her money, including a mysterious $10,000 which Dundee thinks is blackmail, is practically cleared of suspicion. The evidence against Ralph hasn't been made public yet, as the papers all carry Captain Strawn's theory that a New York gunman killed her. Penny goes to answer the telephone, and returns, horrified, and tells Dundee that Ralph has just called and he doesn't even know Nita is dead.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXVI

"Of course I recognized his voice instantly when he said, 'That you, Penny?' and it's a wonder to me I didn't scream," said Penny Crain, fighting her way up through dazed bewilderment to explain in detail, in answer to Dundee's peeling questions. "I said, 'Of course, Ralph. . . Where have you been?' . . . And he said, in that coaxing, teasing voice of his that I know so well: 'Penny? . . . I don't blame you, honey. You really ought not to let me come over and explain why I stood you up last night, but you will, won't you? . . . Ni-l-ze Penny!' . . . That's exactly how he talked, Bonnie Dundee! Exactly! Oh, don't you see he couldn't know that Nita is dead?"

"Did you ask him where he was?" Dundee asked finally.

"No, I just told him to come on over, and he said I could depend on it that he wouldn't waste any time . . . Oh, Bonnie! What shall we do?"

"Listen, Penny!" Dundee urged rapidly. "You must realize that I've got to see and hear, but I don't want Ralph Hammond to see me until after he's had a talk with you. Will you let me eavesdrop behind those portieres? . . . I know it's a beastly thing to do, but—"

Penny agreed to do, but within 10 minutes after that amazing telephone call Dundee, from behind the portieres that separated the dining and living rooms, heard Penny greeting her visitor in the little foyer. She had played fair; had not gone out into the hall to whisper a warning—if any warning was needed.

He had seen Ralph Hammond enter the dining room of the Stuart House the day before, in company with Clive Hammond and Polly Beale, when the three had been strangers to him; but Dundee told himself now that he would hardly have recognized the young man whom Penny was preceding into her living room. The Ralph Hammond of Saturday had had a white, drawn face and sick eyes. But this boy . . .

Like his older brother, Clive, Ralph Hammond had dark-red, curling hair. But unlike his brother's, his eyes were a wide, candid hazel—the green iris thickly flecked with brown. A little shorter than Clive, a trifle more slender. But that which held the detective's eyes was something less tangible but at once more evident than superlative masculine good looks. It was a sort of shy joyousness and buoyancy, which flushed the tan of his cheeks, sang in his voice, made his eyes almost unbearably bright.

Before Penny Crain, very pale and quiet, could sink into the chair she was groping toward, Ralph Hammond was at her side, one arm going out to encircle her shoulders.

"Don't look like that, Penny!" Dundee heard him plead, his voice suddenly humble. "You've every right to be sore at me, honey, but please don't be. I know I've been an awful cad these last few weeks, but I'm myself again. I'm cured now, Penny."

"Wait, Ralph!" Penny protested faintly, holding back as he would have hugged her hard against his breast. "What about—Nita?"

Dundee saw the young man's face go darkly red, but heard his boyish voice answer almost steadily: "I hoped you'd understand without making me put it into words, honey. . . . I'm cured of—Nita. I can't express it any other way except to say I was sick, and now I'm cured."

"You mean"—Penny faltered with a swift, imploring glance toward Dundee—"you don't love Nita any more? You can't deny you were terribly in love with her, Ralph. Lois told us—told me last night that Nita had told her in strictest confidence that she had promised to marry you, just Thursday night?"

The boy's face was very pale as he dropped his hands from Penny's shoulders, but Dundee, from behind the portieres, was not troubling to spy for the moment. He was too indignant at Penny for having withheld from him the vital fact of Nita's engagement to Ralph Hammond.

"That's true, Penny," Ralph was saying dully. "You have a right to know, because I'm asking you to marry me now. . . . I did propose to Nita again Thursday night, and she did accept me. I confess now I was wild with happiness."

"Why did she refuse you before?" Penny cut in, and Dundee silently thanked her for asking the question he would have liked to ask himself. "Was it because she wasn't sure she was in love with you?"

"You're making it awfully hard for me, honey," the boy protested, then admitted humbly. "Of course you want to know, and you should know. . . . No, she said all along, almost from the first, that she loved me more than I could love her, but that there were—reasons. . . . Two reasons, she always said, and once I asked her jealously if they were both men, but she looked so startled and then laughed so queerly that I didn't ask again. . . . Then I thought it might be because I was younger than she was, though I can't believe she was more than 23 or so, and I'm 25, you know."

And once I got cold-sick because I thought she might still be married, but she said her husband was married again, and I wasn't to ask questions or worry about him—"

"But she did accept you Thursday night?" Penny persisted. "Yes," the boy admitted, his face darkly flushed again. "This is awfully hard, honey, but I'll tell you once for all and get it over with. . . . I took her to dinner. We drove to Burnside because she said she was sick of Hamilton. When we were driving back she suddenly became very queer—reckless, defiant. . . . And she asked me if I still wanted to marry her, and I said I did. I asked her right then to say when, and she said she'd marry me June first, but she added—"

"and the boy, to Dundee's watching eyes, seemed to be genuinely puzzled again by what must have sounded so odd at the time—that 'she'd marry me June first if she lived to see the day.'"

"Penny gasped, then, controlling her horror, she asked with what sounded like real curiosity, 'Then what—happened, Ralph? Why do you propose to her on Thursday and to me on—on Sunday?'"

"A gorgeous actress sacrificed to the typewriter," Dundee told himself, as he waited for Ralph Hammond's reluctant reply.

"Can't we forget it, honey?"—You do love me a little, don't you? Can't you take my word for it that I'm cured now—forever?" Penny's hands went up to cover her face, and Dundee had the grace to feel very sorry indeed for her—sorry even if she intended to give her promise to Ralph Hammond, as a sick feeling in his stomach prophesied that she was about to do.

"How can I know you're really cured?" he heard Penny's faltering voice ask huskily from behind the screen of her hands.

"I suppose you're right," the boy admitted miserably. "There's no need to ask you not to tell anyone else. Although I don't want to see her again ever—Why, Penny, I wouldn't even tell Polly and Clive yesterday, after it happened, though Polly guessed and went upstairs. . . . I tried to keep her back."

"I don't quite understand, Ralph," Penny interrupted. "You mean something happened when you were at Nita's house yesterday morning?"

"Yes, Judge Marshall had promised Nita to have the unfinished half of the stop story turned into a maid's bedroom and bath. Clive let me go to make the estimates. Of course I was glad of the chance to see Nita again—I hadn't been with her since Thursday night. But she had to take Lydia in for a dentist's appointment, and they left me alone in the house. I had to go into the finished half to make some measurements, and in the bedroom I found—oh, God!" he groaned, and pressed a fist against his trembling mouth.

"You found that Dexter Sprague was staying there, was using the bedroom that used to be mine—didn't you?" Penny helped him at last, in desperation.

"How did you know?" the boy stared at the girl blankly for a moment, then seemed to crumple as if from a new blow. "I suppose it was common gossip that Nita and Sprague were lovers, and I was the only one she fooled! . . . My God! To think of all of you would stand by and let me marry her—a cheap little gold-digger from Broadway, living with a cheap four-flusher she couldn't get along without and had to send for—"

"Did you want to kill her, Ralph?" Penny whispered hoarsely, touching one of his knotted fists with a trembling hand.

"Kill her? . . . Good Lord, no!" the boy flung at her violently. "I'm not such an ass as that! You girls are all alike! Polly had so little sense as to think I'd want to kill Nita and Sprague both! She could not see, and neither could Clive, that all I wanted was to get away from everybody and get so drunk I could forget what a fool I'd been—"

"What did you do, Ralph?" Penny asked urgently.

"Why, I got drunk, of course," the boy answered, as if surprised at her persistence. "Darling, you wouldn't believe me if I told you how much rot-gut Scotch it took to put me under, but that filthy bootlegging hotel clerk would have charged me double if he had known how much good it would do me."

"Hotel?" Penny snatched at the vital word. "Where did you go to get drunk, Ralph?"

"I never realized before you had so much curiosity, honey," the boy grinned at her. "After I shook Clive—Polly went on to Nita's bridge party, because she couldn't throw her down at the last minute—I wandered around till I came to the Railroad Men's Hotel, down on State street, you know, the other side of the tracks. It's a miserable dump, but I sort of hankered for a place to hide in that was as miserable and cheap as I felt—"

"Did you register under your own name?"

"Ashamed of me, Penny? . . . No, I registered under my first two names—Ralph Edwards. And the clerk turned out to be a bootlegger. . . . Well, when I woke up about 11 this morning I gave you my word I wasn't sick and headachy, though God knows I'd drunk enough to put me out for a week. . . . Penny, I woke up feeling—well, I can't explain it but to say I felt light and ned and—clean—All washed-up! At first I thought my heart was empty—it felt so free of pain. But as I lay there I found my heart wasn't empty at all. It was brimming full of love—Gosh, honey! I sound like a Laura Jean Libby here, don't I? . . . But before I rang you from the luncheon where I ate breakfast I wrote Nita a special delivery note, telling her it was all off. I had to be free actually, before I could ask you. . . . You will marry me, won't you, Penny honey? . . . I knew this morning I had never really loved any one else—"

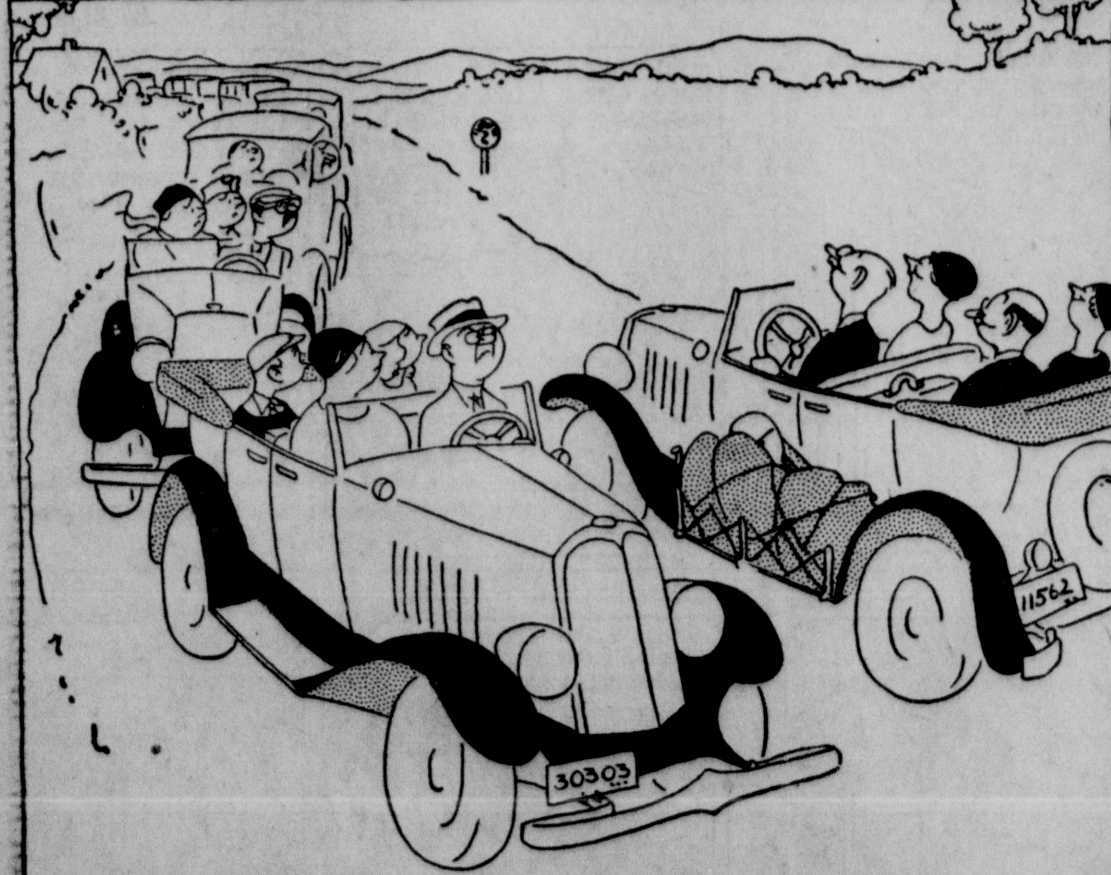

Penelope Crain remained rigid for a moment, then very slowly she laid both her hands on his head, for he had knelt and buried his face against her skirt. But as she spoke, her brown eyes, enormous in her white face, were upon Dundee, who had stepped silently from behind the portieres.

"Yes, I'll marry you, Ralph! . . . You may come in now, Mr. Dundee!"

What? Police Gazette to Invade the Beauty Parlors!

THE Police Gazette, beloved old dirt-disher of Sweet Adeline days, is coming back to the barber shops.

The pink nickel-shocker that your Uncle Chester used to get such a big kick out of—"That tableau in the Turkish Bath sure was a hot one, boys"—is about to resurrect itself from the limbo of forgotten things into which it was pushed by debt a year ago.

And the daughter of a Methodist minister is the editor. Of course the old journal won't be the same. The world has moved. Drug store and barber shop cowboys wouldn't be interested in the tights-clad Beef Trust beauties that used to thrill grandpa. The "sports" of the old days who could get a half-hour's enjoyment out of lurid pictures showing the inside of a den of vice, or a policeman escorting two cigar-smoking mammas to the bastille, aren't around any more.

Nowadays it's torch singers, clad in—well, just any little thing. The idea may be the same, but it had to be fixed up a bit differently.

Mrs. Merle Williams Hersey, who happens to be the minister's daughter who is managing editor of the revived journal, is aware of all this.

"WE'LL present the lurid and sensational," she says. "The old Gazette lost its appeal because it became too tame. There wasn't enough emphasis on sex. It just naturally decayed."

"We will give our readers lots of sex, underworld stuff, beautiful women not necessarily nude but fetchingly attired."

Not much different from the crinolene days when the Gazette was "a most interesting journal of horrid murders, outrageous robberies, bold forgeries, astounding burglaries and vulgar seductions."

But Mrs. Hersey, who also edits three other very spicy magazines, is going a bit further than the barber shops for her readers. The new Police Gazette will make the beauty shops as well!

That intention—to sell the journal in the marcel parlors, too—stands out as a cerise mark on a changing world. For back there in the gosh-darn nineties, a barber shop customer would no more think of taking home the Gazette, or letting his wife know he had been reading it, than he would of cutting off his right arm.

The barber shop then was the sacred refuge of the male animal. It was a little world shut off from femininity, where a man could read a paper that told all about "The Reckless Exploit of a Harem Scaram Darling" and nobody need know that he had been peering into pink perdition.

NOW the journal, without a great deal of change in its appeal—Mrs. Hersey says it is going to try to print all the scandal first—is going into the hands of friend wife, and no longer will be the old man's private prerogative. Days are different.

A pink magazine in a beauty shop, with pictures of almost nude women—my stars!

"The new magazine will have a beauty column," says Mrs. Hersey, "which will tell women how to care for their skin and hair. There will be a serial story; our first one is 'Middletown Hotel,' which is the weird tale of an inn taken over by gangsters, a beautiful girl comes along, a gangster wins her heart, and you know all that."

The pages that John L. Sullivan trod in majesty are going to take on a little different tone.

"Of course there will be sports," says the new editor. "That will be a department of the paper, but that will be secondary. Nat Fleischer, boxing writer, will have charge of that angle."

When our forefathers brought forth the Police Gazette, fourscore and eight years ago, it was both like and unlike the paper that Mrs. Hersey has planned. It was dedicated to the proposition that all men are created admirers of manly and upstanding literature and arts—with a little racy coloring to intrigue the fancy gentlemen.

THE Gazette was born, in fact, in violence. It lived by scandal and violence, enduring storm after storm until it toppled last year in a gale of debts.

At first it was a bold crusader, in keeping with the times (that was 1845). In its first edition it carried the first installment of "The Life of Bob the Wheelwright," in jail charged with the murder of his fifth wife. The story stirred a saloon riot in which a man was killed and another had his ears chewed off.

George Wilkes was the brilliant editor of that young Gazette. He rocked the city of New York with sensation after sensation. His wars on the underworld reached a climax when some fifty mobsters of the period attacked the cellar where the journal was printed, killed a reporter and sent Editor Wilkes and a few printers to the hospital.

Playing parts in this battle were such protagonists of that period as Boss Harrington, Nobby McChester, Donkey Dora Cole, Lizzie the Poor Beauty, Country McCloskey and Deaf Martin.

The plant was demolished and the battle, in which several of the gang were killed, raged in the streets for hours.

The sheriff made his customary onslaught on the harassed sheet in 1857, and Editor Wilkes took his pocketful of unpaid bills and moved out into the street. The journal struggled along in a mediocre way without Wilkes. In 1872 two engravers conducted it.

THEN along came Richard K. Fox, a young Irishman with energy and imagination, and did he whoop it up!

Under Fox the Gazette aimed to please with intentions not much out of line with those of its present staff. There were stories about the gas-lit night life of the wicked city, high brow scandals, flaming youth, grisly dens, female desperadoes, and don't forget the girl who could eat 50 raw eggs in an hour. Fox was all that Barnum might have been as a journalist.

Pictures from this old Gazette, showing pickpockets at work at a race track, lifting the watch of some bibulous old gentleman, still are regarded as classics. Then there was that one showing the two belles "with a weakness for real men" ducking a dude who undoubtedly had made improper advances and all that.

It was a great sporting journal under Fox, too, and he played a dramatic role in the bally hoo that led the mighty John L. Sullivan

Richard K. Fox, under whose editorship the Police Gazette reached the zenith of fame.

Fox was seated at a table in one of those "sporting" theaters of bygone days with a group of the boys who were having some fun. At another table was Sullivan, drinking stout. Fox sent a waiter to ask John L. to come over. Sullivan's reply was: "It's no longer from me to him than from him to me, and I want to see me, he can do the walking."

FOX was vexed, and began a search for a man who could lick John L. First he backed Paddy Ryan for the job. Down went Paddy. Next he talked Frank Slavin into a mood in which Slavin believed he could lick the Boston boy. Slavin went Ryan's way.

Then Fox put up a $4000 bet for a battle between Jake Kilrain and John L. After Sullivan torpedooed Kilrain, Fox "did the walking." From then on he was Sullivan's loyal and devoted friend.

After Fox's death the breath of life came shorter in those once vivacious pages. The old appeal just wasn't there. The Gazette, living in the past, became a colorless review. Finally it succumbed to these complications in February, 1932.

Now a word about the woman who plans to restore Saturday night scandal and a few helpings of sex appeal to ye olde barber shop, and at the same time interest the gals across the way in the reset salon:

She is small, brown-eyed, with soft gray curls that cluster about her face and at the ght, 1933, by EveryWeek Magazine—Printed in U. S. A.)

Yes sir, the naughty old pink sheet that once graced every barber shop is now edited by a woman!---and she's going to make it a sexier, more daring Gazette and go after feminine readers nape of her neck. Her clothes are interestingly feminine.

Her father was a Methodist minister in the Columbia River Conference in the west. He was called the Boy Preacher of the Northwest because he began preaching at 18.

"BUT he left the church," says Mrs. Hersey, "and I went to live with my grandparents when a very small girl. They were very, very strict. I used to wait until they went to bed and then I would slip out the window and go to dances."

She attended Willamette, a Methodist college in Oregon. She was married to Harold Hersey, a pulp paper editor, but as she says, "it didn't last." She has a daughter 18 years old. It was through the writing of short stories that Mrs. Hersey came to the editorship of several sexy magazines.

Her experiences with these magazines gave her the background she will try to put into the Police Gazette.

doesn't agree with all people. Neither do the same sort of magazines, and men who want sex in fiction should have it."

The new Gazette will apply the shock in a way that perhaps the sports of the gay nineties would not recognize (or would they?). Crime was held in another sort of light then (or wasn't it?). The old Gazette carried stories which still are referred to.

Rufus Choate, who succeeded Daniel Webster as leader of the Massachusetts bar, was materially aided by the national prominence he attained in the Police Gazette. Choate was defense counsel in the famed "Somnambulist Murder" in Boston. He won an acquittal for Mary Bickford's clandestine lover who had been charged with cutting her throat after a midnight "wild party."

The type of sketch that was considered very hot stuff in the 'nineties... a couple of covers from old Police Gazettes.

Here is a typical excerpt from a Gazette trial story:

"The dove of heaven was no more spotless than was she when this serpent set his wolf-like eyes upon her. But now, through the devilish labyrinth of crime he has led—the trail of the serpent is over her soul. She was as pure as innocence itself."

Above, Mrs. Merle Williams Hersey, who is receiving the pink-faced shocker which used to be so popular in the barber shops of the 'nineties.

Now the journal, without a great deal of change in its appeal, is going into the hands of friend wife... for the new Police Gazette will make the beauty parlors as well as the barber shops.

CONGRATULATIONS, NEW YORK SUN!

We are in receipt of the New York Sun, printed September 2nd, the 100th anniversary of the initial number of the Sun published in that city. The paper contains 104 pages, plus a supplement, which is a facsimile of the first copy of The Sun which was ever issued from the press.

In the 40-page section that is in addition to the regular part of the paper, there are the high-lights of New York's history of the 100 years, printed in the form of headlines and pictures taken from the papers of The Sun, of the striking events during that whole eventful period. In this section the advertising matter is confined to those institutions which date back at least to the same length of life as does The Sun itself.

The contrast of the illustrations of what the city was in 1833 and 1933 is interesting in the extreme. The sky-line of lower Manhattan in 1833 shows little more than that of Santa Ana, while that of 1933 has the buildings looming up to 100 stories.

The supplement, which consists of the facsimile of The Sun of its first issue, consists of but four pages, very little larger than an ordinary letter-head for the typewriter. The price of the paper was one penny. We believe that this was the first penny newspaper that was ever printed and sold in this country.

Six newspapers carry advertisements in this section, as papers that are 100 years old or more. The Hartford Courant, which was founded October 29, 1764, the New York Journal of Commerce, which was founded in 1827, and the Boston Evening Transcript, the Springfield Republican, the Boston Post and the Detroit Free Press had all been published for two or more years, when The Sun started.

In view of the fact that so many business enterprises have such short lives, it is well worth while to note those which have sustained the vicissitudes of 100 years. Wanamaker's, which then was A. T. Stewart's, was 10 years old, founded in 1823. The Methodist Book Concern, founded in 1789, has an advertisement in the paper, as do the American Bible Society founded 17 years before the founding of The Sun, and the Trinity School which dates way back to 1709.

Among the firms advertising, that have carried on during this period, was one under the name of William Cruikshank's Sons, still doing business, now at 49 Wall Street. The Insurance Company of North America proves its right to appear in these pages. The Central Hanover and Trust company is another institution qualifying.

The National City Bank of New York can boast of more than 100 years of banking experience, also the City Bank Farmers Trust Company, and the Chase National Bank. The National Newark and Essex Banking Company and the Bank for Savings are two more financial institutions appearing in the columns. In fact, the financial institutions out-number by far all other classes.

A few of the institutions like Dillon, Read and Company, have changed their names several times in the century, but are essentially the same institutions. Some of the railroads are in its pages—the New York Central, Delaware and Hudson, the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio.

While in these 40 pages the Sun has been unable to bring out all of the striking events, it has done so for a few of them, and one of the most striking things is a story that appeared on April 13, 1844, with these words in the headline: "Astounding News By Express by Way of Norfolk. The Atlantic Crossed in Three Days! Signal Triumph of Mr. Monck Mason's Flying Machine!!! Arrival At Sullivan's Island, near Charleston, S. C., of Mr. Mason, Mr. Robert Holland, Mr. Henson, Mr. Harrison Alsworth, and four others, in the Steering Balloon 'Victoria' after passage of seventy-five hours from Land to Land. Full Particulars of the Voyage!!!" But this, of course, was a hoax, and probably the writer of it never dreamed that he was giving anything which would approach reality 100 years later.

This, together with the story of life on the moon, which was another hoax, gave the Sun great circulation. These hoaxes brought the sale of the paper up to the enormous number of 19,000, passing the circulation of London's largest newspaper.

The Sun, in its edition, has given to the reading public one of the most interesting copies of its famous journal. One could spend unlimited time in writing of its pages, for it is loaded with the stories of interesting characters like Dana.

We congratulate this journal on its 100 years, and would like to see the character of the paper that it could print at the end of its second century.

THE ONLY WAY OUT

The maltreatment of the Jews in Germany knows no respite. The story of the atrocities would stir the souls of even cold-hearted men.

The people are urged to boycott German-made goods, not as a punishment or retaliation, but for the purpose of correcting this great evil. We are not believers in boycotts, under ordinary circumstances. But if the German people can continue to do what they are doing with impunity, it will not only be injurious to the race whom they are attacking, but will be destructive of the character and ideals of the German people.

Any means by which that condition can be corrected, or can force upon the German people that they are entirely out of harmony with the consensus of public opinion in the world, will be a great benefit. We do not see any other way out. Men who love humanity will join in this movement, not only for the sake of the Jew, but finally for the sake of themselves.

The only way that any man or woman or group can be sure of enjoying the institutions that civilization has erected for the protection of the rights of people, is to be sensitive to the injury done others, when those rights have been invaded amongst any people. If this action is taken throughout the nations, Germany will eventually come to her senses, and, in the meantime, the rest of us are doing what we can to preserve our own self-respect, and to insure that this brainless and hateful malady will not spread. Let us insist that everything we buy shall be grown and manufactured, at any rate, outside of Germany.

MORGAN ENTERTAINS LAVISHLY ABROAD ON MONEY SAVED ON TAXES

The news dispatches have been carrying the information that J. Pierpont Morgan is entertaining lavishly at Edzell in Forfar county, Scotland. He has rented 3000 acres from Lord Dalhousie. The hunting season is in full swing, and Morgan and his friends are enjoying themselves.

Incidentally, Lord Dalhousie is getting some money to pay his taxes from the rental of his estate. According to the testimony of J. P. Morgan, as we recall, he didn't pay any taxes in this country. But he is doing the benevolent and generous thing in taking the money that he didn't have to pay for taxes here over to Europe, and helping good Lord Dalhousie pay his taxes. So he is performing the objective of the Boy Scouts of "doing a good deed every day."

"J. P." should be thankful that he lives in the United States, incidentally, as far as the tax proposition is concerned. We recall the news of what Mr. Morgan said when he landed in Edinburgh, after his trip over. It was condemnation of socialism, with a hint that the government might be tending in that direction.

The uncovering of the matters in the investigation did not seem to worry Mr. Morgan. It all went out as a laugh, as far as he was concerned, with a little midget on his knee. Well, maybe we wouldn't consider it so seriously if we were similarly situated, and were dealing in money as a commodity.

But it would help matters if the government would prohibit the export of any kind of capital or money, as well as gold, for currency can be taken abroad and exchanged for gold at a discount. Men like Morgan are willing to pay discounts to play safe.

Mountain Climbing By Proxy

Christian Science Monitor

To the experienced mountain climber, "armchair" ascents of difficult peaks are but diverting interludes between the thrills of personal assault on coveted summits. The printed page and lecture represent far more than this to many who cannot participate in pioneering expeditions. Most men and women have to be content to enjoy such exploits at second hand, but climbing by proxy brings many pleasures to lovers of great heights, and recent triumphs of the airplane and motion picture camera multiply its interest and satisfaction.

Vigorous achievements in high mountaineering lift the valley-bound enthusiast far above the plane of his daily concerns. A photograph of the tremendous 10,000-foot precipice on Aconcagua hangs for years in the mental picture gallery. Camera shots of the summit of Everest made from a plane soaring over the mighty Himalayas stop one's breath in wonder. Movies of an ascent of the Grepon transport the members of a suburban audience to the icy snowfields and rock-walled chasms of the Alps, absorbing them completely in the perils and joys of another's conquest of these sublimities. Such feats hearten everyday humanity to attack its own problems with courage and confidence.

Aerial photography has lately made immense contributions to the preliminary reconnaissance of approach routes to bases and upper mountain masses formerly yielding their secrets only after months and even years of hard work by scouting parties toiling out of base camps. Through the contributions of these modern facilities, men and women pass into the luminous spaces of the imagination and build visions of mountain realities out of the products of others' explorations. They serve the climber-by-proxy by disclosing new beauties from the exalted levels reached by his fellows, and helping those who make the heights better to interpret their findings to those whose lot is cast below.

Century Plant Critics

New York Times

Unkind things have been said about the century plant up in the Bronx. It has been severely taken to task for not producing its blossoms on schedule. Now that the buds have opened the effect is described as nothing to write home about.

Yet it did not escape the notice of The New York Times reporter that the long delay may not have been ineptness on the part of the plant. It may have been the shrewdest kind of calculation. The century plant will be in full bloom on Labor Day. Bernard Shaw will not allow a new play to be put on until late in the season when the best people are back in town and the carriage trade is in full swing. So this rare ornament of the vegetable kingdom, Agave americana, waited for a three-day holiday and a popular audience that will probably run up into the tens of thousands.

As for the modest amount of beauty so far revealed in the century plant's blossoms, it is well to remember that good looks and ancient lineage do not often go together. The daughter of a hundred years in a bathing beauty contest at Atlantic City is likely to run second to the saleslady from the five-and-ten store.

Now It Can Be Told

San Francisco Chronicle

Bad news travels quickly except when the country originating the news happens to be interior China. Then the world learns it tardily. On August 28 the seismographs at Pasadena and Washington recorded a heavy earthquake 8 miles away somewhere northwest of the Philippines. Now the accounts are trickling in of a tremendous earthquake in Western China. An area of 170 square miles in the province of Szechwan is said to have been torn up, with enormous loss of life and property.

In 1920 one of the greatest earthquakes of modern times laid waste Kansu province in Western China, killing 200,000 persons, and again the seismograph on the American side hinted at disaster it took weeks to confirm. In the interval between the two disasters, communication has not improved in the western China. It is still no faster than it was in the ox cart age. News, good or bad, moves no swifter down the Yangtze than the ancient sailcraft will bear it. The old dragon, in these far off places, still drags his slow length along.

Embarrassing Moment

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

SIMPLY INCREDIBLE

On hearing that the people of Paris have a mania for hot dogs.

Can it be that the people of Paris
Who have, from their birth, been endued
With the marvelous skill
Of implanting a thrill
In even the lowliest food,
Have abandoned their farces and rotis,
And even the snail and the frog,
And dine with delight
Almost every night
On the lowly but succulent dog?

Is it rue that at Henri's and Foyot's
And even the Tour D'Argent,
The popular flair
For the old forms of fare
Once the pride of all Paris is gone,
While the gourmets sit down at the tables
And load in an ample supply
Of the fodder which came
By its ignoble fame
In the far spreading stockyards of "Chi"?

Will the dog wagons shortly be rumbling
Through the crowded Parisian streets,
While the folk of the land
Rally 'round to demand
The latest American "eats"?
If it's true that the wizards of foodcraft
Now are serving the fruit of the pen,
No longer shall I
Heave a heartbreaking sigh
That I can't be in Paris again.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

THE BANKERS AND NRA

In these articles and over the radio I have suggested that the bankers, with their fingers on the credit artery, hold a crucial position in the NRA drive.

General Johnson has since borne down on the same point. His pronouncement has caused no end of fluttering in the dove-cotes of the directors of the banking system.

Just what did General Johnson mean—and what have I meant—in stating that credit must be liberalized to tide many enterprises over until profits begin to flow back from the new money invested in higher wages, shorter hours and more employment? And just what is sound or unsound in the hesitancy of the banking world to underwrite this contention?

The NRA is, let us be honest, a courageous gamble! The Roosevelt administration asks economic America to gamble higher wages, shorter hours and more employment on the belief that this will restore nation-wide consumption to the point where it will again be profitable—for big enterprises and small enterprises—to do business.

The tragedy is that this challenge was not put to economic America in 1928! It could have been met then with a minimum of difficulty and a maximum of benefit. Today this challenge puts perplexing problems to many enterprises.

As I suggested last week, if the reserves of an enterprise have disappeared, if its credit is inadequate and it has no vast sales volume in the immediate offing, it simply cannot swing the NRA demands unless credit comes into the picture to tide it over. No body, I assume, will dispute this obvious fact.

With this fact admitted the question becomes: Who is to provide the credit? There is no one word answer to this question. We cannot say the "banks" and let it go at that. Nor can we say the "government" and let it go at that.

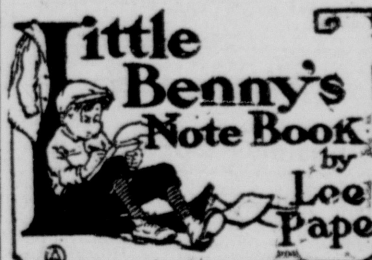

The banks should not get out on a sheer Santa Claus policy of making any loan that anybody asks in the name of the Blue Eagle. It will not serve the national future to have the banking system of the country sung in a sea of bad loans.

The government should not set out to play easy-going uncle to every borrower that comes along. It will not serve the national future to have the government subsidize every weak and incompetently managed enterprise in the country.

The answer lies in the exercise of the utmost of careful but courageous intelligence by both the banks and the government in extending credit to every enterprise that can be reasonably expected to survive and take its place in the ultimate scheme of a higher wage and shorter hour economy.

There must be some casualties in this war on depression. Some enterprises cannot survive in the national scheme into which we are moving. The thing we must be sure of is this: The casualties must be due to inherent weakness in the enterprise, not to undue conservatism on the part of the banks or timidity on the part of the government.

CHILDREN'S TOYS

"Mother, look at that nice little automobile."

"Yes, isn't it pretty?"

"Will you get it for me?"

"You don't want it?"

"Yes I do. I do so want it. Get it for me."

"Now Ralph, don't be silly. You have about a hundred automobiles now. You can't possibly do anything with them. Use some of the ones you have. Come along."

"I haven't a blue and red one. I want that one. Buy it for me, mother. Buy it for me. I want it. No, I won't go home. I won't go. I want it."

"Next time I go out you stay home. I suppose you won't give me a minute's peace until I get it for you although what you want of it is beyond me. Ten cents! Wrap it up for him. There now, I hope you are satisfied."

So the red and blue automobile was added to the others that were piled high in the corner. "I do so play with them," and to make good he arranged a long row of them across the living room floor and left them there. Father came in and stepped on them and spoke his mind.

"Why do you let him clutter the place up with such junk? He has about a million of them and all he does with them is throw them about the house for other people to sit or walk on. Throw the whole lot into the garbage can and get rid of them."

"No, I won't do that. Don't throw them away. I want them."

"Then keep them where they belong. If I find another one of them about the place out they go and don't you forget it."

That kind of toy buying does the child no good and it wastes time and money and human energy. A little child needs a few good toys. By good I mean good for something practical. A ball is good. A set of blocks that can be used for building a few toy automobiles of different sorts, to complete the building. A wheel of some sort from a kiddie car to a bicycle is important. Toys that are miniatures of the ones father and mother use are the very right thing.

The toys children use are worthy of grave consideration. Their selection ought to be made with thought and care. What a child does he is likely to become. I don't mean that if he builds with wooden blocks he will be a carpenter. I do mean that if he builds with success, if he works with purpose and achieves his purpose, he will become an intelligent and useful human being. The quality of his work and his achievement, the quality of his thought and his character, will be of the best.

It is not enough that a child be busy. His business must be ordered. It must have a purpose, that originated in his own mind. It can be enriched and stimulated by the power of other minds but his must be the first and foremost and in control if the doing is to be of value to him. A boxful of toys that are not used in the service of the child owner is about the most wasteful and useless and harmful thing that can come his way.
